COMMUNISTS GIVEN ALLIED REASONS

Previous Role In Korea Labels Soviet Unneutral

MUNSAN, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The UN Command told the Communists Thursday that Russia's "record of past participation in Korea" bars the Soviet Union as a neutral fit to help police a Korean truce.

Simultaneously general headquarters in Tokyo warned that every step forward in truce talks "will be followed by a step backward until Moscow is convinced that the final decision for Korea must be made without further delay."

An information bulletin compiled from "Voice of the UN Command Broadcast" declared:

"It seems to be their plan to raise two additional disputes to take the place of every one that has been settled."

"Like the hydra-headed monster of mythology, there will be new entanglements following every settlement just as long as the Kremlin thinks there is still something to gain by prolonging the talks."

At Panmunjom, an Allied spokesman said UN reasons for rejecting Russia were "clear and irrefutable." He did not spell out the reasons.

Col. Don Darrow said the UN Command would reject the nomination of any nation "in close proximity to Korea" or any nation which had "a record of past participation in Korea."

A Red staff officer said the UN reasons were not satisfactory, but Darrow refused to be drawn into an argument. He said:

"The United Nations does not propose to enter into endless discussion on this topic and recommends that your side give our statement serious consideration."

Darrow did not elaborate on his references to "close proximity" or "record of past participation."

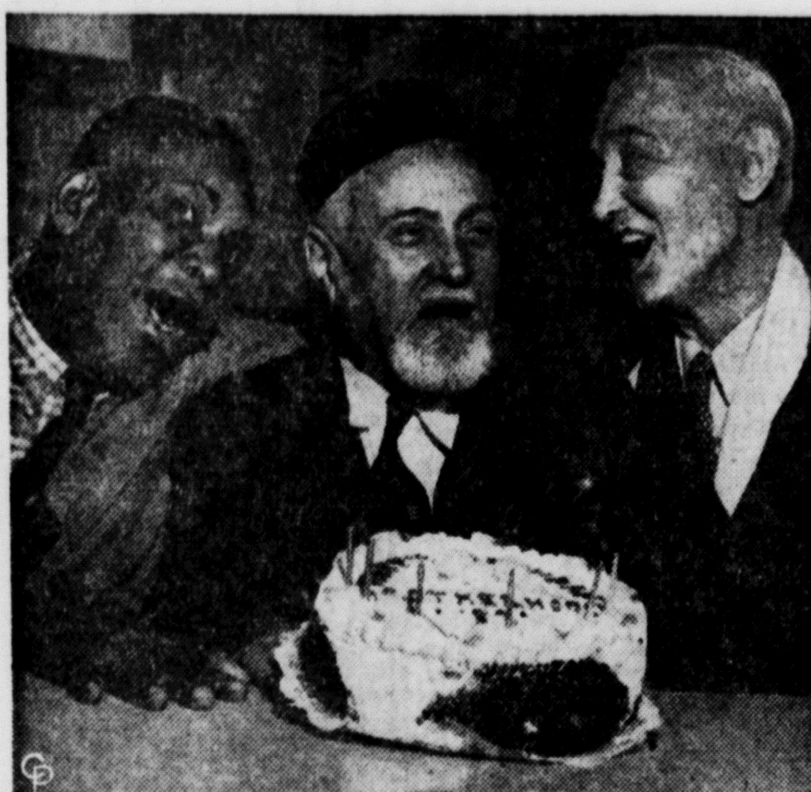

The Russians occupied North Korea at the close of World War II. They trained, equipped and advised the North Korean army.

Both the Chinese Reds and the North Koreans are supplied with large quantities of Soviet-made equipment including the deadly Mig-15 jet fighter, tough T-34 tanks and the radar-controlled anti-aircraft batteries.

The border of Soviet Siberia joins Korea for a distance of about 10 miles.

The Chinese Communist radio at Peiping Wednesday demanded UN acceptance of Russia as a neutral, declaring the Soviet always has opposed the Korean war.

The general headquarters bulletin warned against optimism as a result of this week's agreement to hold a post-armistice Korean peace conference.

'WHY ARE WE IN KOREA?'

Atlantic Chiefs Study Anti-Soviet Defenses

LISBON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The 14 Atlantic foreign ministers are meeting behind closed doors for an up-to-the-moment study of the Russian problem.

A spokesman said U. S. Secretary of State Acheson and his colleagues heard and thrashed over top-level reports on the Soviet Union and its latest policies toward the free world.

Earlier, Allied defense ministers in less than one hour approved a military committee report calling for 50 to 60 divisions to be in the field by the end of 1952.

The report now goes to the council. There the full-dress assembly of foreign, finance and defense ministers must settle a conflict between the Allied chiefs of staff and

W. Averell Harriman's temporary council committee.

The committee says the 1954 target of 100 divisions on active duty or in immediate reserve must be scaled down 12 per cent because the European economies cannot afford the full goal.

THE MILITARY wants to keep the 100 division target, planning production so many divisions could be armed and supported.

Meanwhile, the top military and financial brains of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization were hard at work on the problems of how defensive air bases can be strung across Europe before the 1952 building season is lost.

Before the defense and finance ministers lay blueprints for the air bases, their communication lines and control headquarters.

With these completed, the 14 Western allies could breathe easier despite the dangers of Soviet Russia's Korea-proven jets.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, boss of the alliance's military establishment in Europe, sent down the outline of his needs. What the defense and finance ministers are pondering is: Who will pay how much of their cost?

Acheson at the council's plenary opening session Wednesday sounded an urgent call for development of "concrete military strength" and a warning that defenses so far built "will be of little value unless we finish the job."

Court Places Roger Burris On Probation

Roger Burris, 19, of Ashville, was placed on five-year probation Thursday in Pickaway County common pleas court for manslaughter.

Burris was indicted by the January grand jury for manslaughter in connection with the death Dec. 21, 1951, of Bobby Harold Swank, also 19, of Millport.

The Ashville youth was confined to Pickaway County jail last Christmas eve following the death of Swank. Swank was killed by the blast of a 12-gauge, single barrel shotgun.

In an earlier arraignment before the court to answer the manslaughter indictment, Burris entered a plea of innocent. He reversed the plea to one of guilty in Thursday's action.

THE COURT PLACED Burris on five-year probation, where the youth is not to violate any law during that period and must report to Prosecuting Attorney Guy Cline once each month.

In addition, Burris was ordered to pay funeral expenses for Swank and for a grave marker. He also is not to own any firearm or obtain a hunting license.

Burris was arraigned before the court of Judge William D. Radcliff on an indictment presented by Prosecutor Cline.

Could Even A Man Drive Like This?

OAKLAND, Calif., Feb. 21.—(AP)—This woman driver apparently didn't want to be apprehended for going through a stop sign.

So, police reported, she sped up, swerved to the wrong side of the street, passed another stop sign, turned a corner and landed, auto and all, in the shallow waters of a mid-town lake.

Pursuing officers booked Mrs. Ferne Nehls, 37, for drunken driving, speeding, driving on wrong side of street, passing two stop signs, and making an incorrect turn.

Taft Policy Under Fire

Morse Says Ohioan Against NATO Setup

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Senator Morse (R-Ore.) believes election of Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to the presidency "would defeat the foreign policy for which General Eisenhower stands."

With Taft as President, Morse said, it would be "impossible to carry out our obligations in Europe under the North Atlantic treaty."

Morse is supporting Eisenhower for the Republican presidential nomination.

Taft was not immediately available for comment on Morse's remarks, but Sen. Brewster (R-Me.), a Taft-backer, said there was no justification for them.

"Senator Taft has made it perfectly clear that as President he would carry out our commitments under the North Atlantic pact," Brewster declared.

Taft has said that although he voted against the pact when it was for Senate ratification, he is all for meeting this country's obligations under the treaty now that it has been approved.

Family Purse Said Key To OK Marriage

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Love may make a happy marriage, but it's the way the family purse is divided that keeps it so, the Married Women's Association reports.

The association, formed in 1938 to "end dictatorship by husbands," offered its views to a royal commission trying to find out why an increasing number of British marriages clog the divorce courts.

The women made these suggestions for marriage without tears:

If the wife does the housework, she should be paid the same wage a servant would get.

The wife's allowance from her husband must be a reasonable amount of the family income and there should be no strings on how she spends it—except for "excessive addition to gambling, smoking or drinking."

Money wives should contribute to family finances according to their means.

Debts should be disclosed before marriage and assets within three months after the ceremony.

Senate Gets New Version Of UMT Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The Senate received a Universal Military Training bill Thursday with a built-in provision designed to cut down the size and cost of the regular armed forces.

Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) reported a 12 to 0 favorable vote by the 13-member Armed Services Committee. He expected to make it unanimous by getting the proxy of Senator Kefauver (D-Tenn.), co-sponsor of UMT, who is campaigning in New England for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Russell sent the controversial UMT measure to the Senate along with a detailed report explaining its provisions.

"I hope to see actual training get underway before this year ends," Russell declared. "This is completely workable and fair legislation. It should make a great contribution to the defense of the country and to the solvency of this nation."

House debate on a similar measure is expected to begin Tuesday.

Probers Blast Political Plums

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The King congressional subcommittee ended its San Francisco hearings with a blast at politically-appointed internal revenue officials, but said rank and file employees "have done a good, honest job."

Chairman Cecil King (D-Calif.) blamed the local internal revenue scandal on "incompetent" political appointees of his own party "protected by an inept top administration in Washington." It urged an end to political appointments in the revenue service. Such a setup is proposed in a reorganization bill sent to Congress by President Truman.

Tax Expert To Aid Ship-Buying Deal Probe Before Senators

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—The government has assigned a tax expert to listen in on details of the profitable ship-buying and selling deal in which the law firm of Newbold Morris has come to figure.

Morris is the wealthy New York Republican named by President Truman to expose any corruption among government officials.

The Senate Investigating Subcommittee is delving into company deals in which Washington Lawyer Joseph E. Casey and friends reared a $3.25 million profit on cash investments of $101,000.

The hearing has recessed until next week.

Casey testified Wednesday that one of the deals, in which a $1,000 cash investment returned quick profits of $450,000, was born in the office of Morris' law partner, Houston H. Wasson.

Julius C. Holmes, minister to the U. S. embassy in London who shared in the profit, reported both he and Morris negotiated with the

ABOUT 60 DIVISIONS PLANNED

Ridgway Chides Those Who Question Action

TOKYO, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway says it is deplorable that many Americans still ask: "Why are we in Korea?"

The supreme Allied commander declared the pattern of Communist intentions is "now spread across the world where even the blind can see."

For his part, Ridgway said there can be no question of the "validity and purpose" of U. S. fighting in Korea "against that deliberately planned, unprovoked aggression."

"To have done otherwise," he said, "would have been a repudiation of every principle we had previously professed."

Ridgway spoke at the annual convention of the Far East Department of the Reserve Officers Association.

HE MADE NO mention of the Korean armistice talks in Panmunjom. The address was devoted largely to remarks on military reserve officers and George Washington, who was born 220 years ago Friday.

Ridgway said the same situation exists today that Washington found in 1775 when he wrote that one of his hardest jobs was to induce people to believe there was "danger until the bayonet is pushed at their breasts."

"Our country," Ridgway said, "still has today many people whose intelligence level offers no slightest excuse for a similar mental outlook on this problem."

"With the pattern of Communist intentions now spread across the world where even the blind can see, neither the seeming insulation of distance, nor the native born of sheltered life, can

Clergy Urged To Practice Psychiatry

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21.—(AP)—About 60 per cent of all the work done by psychiatrists should be done by ministers, a Baptist clergyman believes.

Chaplain Richard Young of North Carolina Baptist Hospitals, Inc., Winston Salem, made that statement at a meeting of the Southside Baptist Hospital Association.

"If things go on as they are now," Chaplain Young said, "the biggest dog fight you've ever seen will be between ministers and psychiatrists. If psychotherapy that concerns a way of life is not our field, I don't know what is."

In another denominational meeting of hospital leaders—the National Association of Methodist Hospitals and Homes Convention—the matter of psychological health also came up for consideration.

Bishop Hazen G. Werner of Columbus, resident Methodist bishop of Ohio, said the relationship of physical and psychological health is becoming more clear. Men and women entering hospitals today of ten are ill emotionally, as well as physically, Bishop Werner told some 500 delegates.

Appliance Metal Supplies Curbed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Production of most household appliances faces a new cutback as the result of a 14 per cent reduction in copper and aluminum supplies.

But the National Production Authority said if the cut threatens to cause serious shortages in refrigerators, ranges, washers, vacuum cleaners and other such appliances, NPA will provide relief.

plead the slightest excuse, nor abate one iota of our individual responsibility.

"To do otherwise than oppose aggression in the future, within our capabilities, will be to acknowledge as sterile every sacrifice America has made since it obtained independence."

Beer Permit Ban Lifted

State To Issue More Licenses

COLUMBUS, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Ohio ended its three-year ban on new beer and wine licenses Thursday.

Liquor Director William C. Bryant said Wednesday he will start issuing licenses to about 2,600 applicants who qualify for them.

The liquor department froze all new beer, wine, and liquor permits in April, 1949. It tried to unfreeze beer and wine permits in July, 1950, but court orders stopped it.

The Ohio Supreme Court cleared the way for the release last Jan. 30, but the department had to hold back until it received the official court order.

The ban continues in effect against new liquor licenses.

The new licenses will be issued only for beer and wine by the glass and beer and wine to carry out.

THE PERMITS are: D-1, 3.2 beer, and D-2, higher-powered beer and wine by the glass; C-1 and C-2, carry-out licenses for beer, and higher-powered beer and wine.

Liquor licenses were issued on a population basis, but the restriction does not apply to beer and wine permits. Applicants deposit $50 with their request for carry-out permits and $100 for beer and wine licenses.

Many of the 2,600 applications have been pending since the ban started, Bryant said. These will be handled first, he said.

Ohio Bell Says Everything Up Except Profit

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Ohio Bell Telephone Co. released an annual report Thursday studded with records everywhere except in net profit.

The company set a record for total operating revenue, $141,157,600; number of telephones in service, 1,831,536; long distance calls, more than 64 million; total invested in plant, $417,277,000; and taxes paid, $26,800,000.

But its net profit was down to $17,100,000 from the $19,500,000 earned in 1950. Earnings for 1951 were equal to $6.30 a share of common stock compared with $7.32 for the year before.

Taxes paid were $4,320,000 more than paid for 1950.

Revenues were $12,506,557 more than in 1950. There were 97,292 more telephones in service and long distance calls were up nine per cent.

Total plant investment was up 77 per cent since the end of World War II.

And there still was more business available. The company started 1951 with a backlog of 7,500 applications for phones. It filled all those and 50,800 other applications, but still had a backlog of 13,000 unfilled orders when it started 1952.

The company said it plans to spend $1 million weekly for expansion and plant improvement during 1952.

Liz Taylor Wed

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Movie Stars Elizabeth Taylor, 19, and Michael Wilding, 39, were married shortly before noon here Thursday in Caxton Registry Hall.

AFTER MANY years in the grunt-and-groan business, Frank Leavitt, known as "Man Mountain Dean" in the mat world, has decided he'd like to become a congressman. ## James Wheeler Earns Top Score In Senior Tests

James Edward Wheeler of Ashville scored the highest mark in Pickaway County during the 1952 Ohio senior scholarship examinations.

Wheeler topped the 45 other Pickaway County seniors during the annual examination by scoring a total of 224 points out of a possible 285.

Ranking next to the Ashville lad was Robert Frederick Moeller of Circleville, who earned a grade of 223 in the test.

Circleville and Ashville seniors dominated the list of seniors who rank in the top 25 percent of the county in the test. Circleville had nine seniors ranking in the select group, Ashville had three and Walnut Township school had one.

Walnut's only senior ranking on the special list was Sarah Elizabeth Rose, who earned a score of 214 points to earn third place in the county.

Much Of County Is To Observe Legal Holiday

A large portion of Pickaway County's business will be halted Friday in observance of Washington's birthday.

All banks in the county are to be closed for the observance, while all schools, city and county, are to have a holiday.

Circleville and Pickaway County public offices also will be closed during the day. Circleville public library will remain closed for the day.

Postal employees will be given a holiday Friday when Circleville Postoffice will be closed. Special deliveries will be made, however.

Circleville's retail merchants will not join in the special holiday but will maintain regular business hours for the day.

300 Patrons Panicky In Odd Mishap

Plaster, Timbers Drop On Audience In Downtown Show

CINCINNATI, Feb. 21.—(AP)—A huge section of ceiling caved in at a downtown movie-house here Wednesday evening, turning some 300 patrons into a panicky, screaming mob.

Approximately 62 injured patrons were hurriedly piled into ambulances, patrol wagons and police cruisers and sped from the Roosevelt Theatre to hospitals. All but eight, who suffered possible fractures, sustained only minor injuries. Most were more frightened than hurt.

A third of the ceiling, right up front, came hurling down. Chunks of plaster and timbers smashed the stationary chairs. Choking clouds of dust obscured vision as the wild-eyed customers struggled for the exits.

Dr. Giles DeCourcy, fire department physician, treated several of the injured out in the street as firemen pushed through crowds of curious passersby and began hauling out the injured. Wads of insulation which also fell down covered row after row of seats.

SOME BEAMS from the ceiling lay across the chairs. Other timbers, left exposed when the plaster gave way, swayed dangerously above.

Firemen declined to give an estimate of the damage, as did the manager, Joseph R. Miller. The movie-house is located a short walk from Cincinnati's main business district on Central Avenue.

There was no fire, but fire-fighters poked through the piles of debris more than two hours to make sure no blaze had started and that no victims were trapped.

The customers, who have been viewing the comedy, "A Girl In Every Port," left everything behind in their scramble to escape more falling plaster.

Hats, coats and shoes were found in the wreckage.

Witnesses said a number of small children and infants were in the theatre with their parents when the ceiling crumbled down.

Only four were on the list of injured, however, hospital attendants reported.

Chance Seen For Start On Turnpike Job

COLUMBUS, Feb. 21.—(AP)—There's a chance construction of the $300 million Ohio turnpike can start in October.

"Our hopes are very high" to get a government allocation of steel in the fourth quarter of this year, James W. Shocknessy, chairman of the Ohio Turnpike Commission, says, adding that if the financing can be arranged by May, bids could be taken in September and work could begin in October.

Shocknessy said Gov. Frank J. Lausche's recent talks with Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer and other federal officials have improved prospects of getting a fourth quarter steel allocation from the National Production Administration.

And, Shocknessy said, financial advisers have informed him that allocation of steel for one quarter would "imply" approval of enough steel to finish the project.

Officials said 25,343 tons of steel would be needed in the fourth quarter of 1952, 35,387 tons in the first quarter of 1953, 34,563 tons in the second quarter of 1953 and 35,340 tons in the third quarter of 1953.

DENVER, Feb. 21.—(AP)—A strike in the oil industry was called Wednesday night for March 3.

"We're going to hit where it hurts," declared O. A. Knight, president of the CIO-Oil Workers International Union, one of the 22 unions which are joining together in the strike. Knight refused to reveal where the strikes, in support of a demand for a 25-cent an hour pay raise, will be called.

The Ohio Supreme Court cleared the way for the release last Jan. 30, but the department had to hold back until it received the official court order.

The ban continues in effect against new liquor licenses.

The new licenses will be issued only for beer and wine by the glass and beer and wine to carry out.

THE PERMITS are: D-1, 3.2 beer, and D-2, higher-powered beer and wine by the glass; C-1 and C-2, carry-out licenses for beer, and higher-powered beer and wine.

Liquor licenses were issued on a population basis, but the restriction does not apply to beer and wine permits. Applicants deposit $30 with their request for carry-out permits and $100 for beer and wine licenses.

Many of the 2,600 applications have been pending since the ban started, Bryant said. These will be handled first, he said.

Ohio Bell Says Everything Up Except Profit

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21.—(P)—Ohio Bell Telephone Co. released an annual report Thursday studded with records everywhere except in net profit.

The company set a record for total operating revenue, $141,157,600; number of telephones in service, 1,831,536; long distance calls, more than 64 million; total invested in plant, $417,277,000; and taxes paid, $26,500,000.

But its net profit was down to $17,100,000 from the $19,500,000 earned in 1950. Earnings for 1951 were equal to $6.30 a share of common stock compared with $7.32 for the year before.

Taxes paid were $4,320,000 more than paid for 1950.

Revenues were $12,506,557 more than in 1950. There were 97,292 more telephones in service and long distance calls were up nine per cent.

Total plant investment was up 77 per cent since the end of World War II.

And there still was more business available. The company started 1951 with a backlog of 7,500 applications for phones. It filled all those and 50,800 other applications, but still had a backlog of 13,000 unfilled orders when it started 1952.

The company said it plans to spend $1 million weekly for expansion and plant improvement during 1952.

James Wheeler Earns Top Score In Senior Tests

James Edward Wheeler of Ashville scored the highest mark in Pickaway County during the 1952 Ohio senior scholarship examinations.

Wheeler topped the 45 other Pickaway County seniors during the annual examination by scoring a total of 224 points out of a possible 285.

Ranking next to the Ashville lad was Robert Frederick Moeller of Circleville, who earned a grade of 223 in the test.

Circleville and Ashville seniors dominated the list of seniors who rank in the top 25 percent of the county in the test. Circleville had nine seniors ranking in the select group, Ashville had three and Walnut Township school had one.

Walnut's only senior ranking on the special list was Sarah Elizabeth Rose, who earned a score of 214 points to earn third place in the county.

PICKAWAY COUNTY's high-ranking seniors will be eligible to receive district awards if they rank in the top 10 percent, while state awards will be made to those ranking in the upper one percent.

Other local seniors ranking in the top 25 percent of the county and the scores they made during the examination are: Virginia Ann Kraft of Ashville, 204; Charles David Magill of Circleville, 189; Paul Dennis Rooney of Circleville, 188; Ralph Lawrence Frye of Ashville, 186; Patricia Ann Cain and Janet Yvonne Grant, both of Circleville, 185 each; Gene Arnold Clifton of Circleville, 184; Nancy Bee Goodchild of Circleville, 183; and Gordon Neil Blake and James Donald Cook, both of Circleville, 181 each.

All of the seniors ranking in the top 25 percent of the county are to receive certificates of achievement.

Shocksness said Gov. Frank J. Lausche's recent talks with Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer and other federal officials have improved prospects of getting a fourth quarter steel allocation from the National Production Administration.

And, Shocksness said, financial advisers have informed him that allocation of steel for one quarter would "imply" approval of enough steel to finish the project.

Officials said 25,343 tons of steel would be needed in the fourth quarter of 1952, 35,387 tons in the first quarter of 1953, 54,563 tons in the second quarter of 1953 and 35,340 tons in the third quarter of 1953.

300 Patrons Panicky In Odd Mishap

Plaster, Timbers
Drop On Audience
In Downtown Show

CINCINNATI, Feb. 21.—(P)—A huge section of ceiling caved in at a downtown movie-house here Wednesday evening, turning some 300 patrons into a panicky, screaming mob.

Approximately 62 injured patrons were hurriedly piled into ambulances, patrol wagons and police cruisers and sped from the Roosevelt Theatre to hospitals. All but eight, who suffered possible fractures, sustained only minor injuries. Most were more frightened than hurt.

A third of the ceiling, right up front, came hurling down. Chunks of plaster and timbers smashed the stationary chairs. Choking clouds of dust obscured vision as the wild-eyed customers struggled for the exits.

Dr. Giles DeCourcy, fire department physician, treated several of the injured out in the street as firemen pushed through crowds of curious passersby and began hauling out the injured. Wads of insulation which also fell down covered row after row of seats.

SOME BEAMS from the ceiling lay across the chairs. Other timbers, left exposed when the plaster gave way, swayed dangerously above.

Firemen declined to give an estimate of the damage, as did the manager, Joseph R. Miller. The movie-house is located a short walk from Cincinnati's main business district on Central Avenue.

There was no fire, but fire-fighters poked through the piles of debris more than two hours to make sure no blaze had started and that no victims were trapped.

The customers, who have been viewing the comedy, "A Girl In Every Port," left everything behind in their scramble to escape more falling plaster.

Hats, coats and shoes were found in the wreckage.

Witnesses said a number of small children and infants were in the theatre with their parents when the ceiling crumbled down.

Only four were on the list of injured, however, hospital attendants reported.

Chance Seen For Start On Turnpike Job

COLUMBUS, Feb. 21.—(P)—There's a chance construction of the $300 million Ohio turnpike can start in October.

"Our hopes are very high" to get a government allocation of steel in the fourth quarter of this year, James W. Shocksness, chairman of the Ohio Turnpike Commission, says, adding that if the financing can be arranged by May, bids could be taken in September and work could begin in October.

Shocksness said Gov. Frank J. Lausche's recent talks with Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer and other federal officials have improved prospects of getting a fourth quarter steel allocation from the National Production Administration.

Oil Industry Facing Walkout

DENVER, Feb. 21.—(P)—A strike in the oil industry was called Wednesday night for March 3.

"We're going to hit where it hurts," declared O. A. Knight, president of the CIO-Oil Workers International Union, one of the 22 unions which are joining together in the strike. Knight refused to reveal where the strikes, in support of a demand for a 25-cent an hour pay raise, will be called.

BROTHERHOOD is the key to this fourth annual party for old folks of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths in the Home of Old Israel in New York City. Members of the trio joining in song (above) are William Davis, 75, Salvation Army's Reg. Shield Club; Meyer Pomerantz, 85, Home of Old Israel; and John McNally, 78, of Hudson Guild.

WHY ARE WE IN KOREA?

Atlantic Chiefs Study Anti-Soviet Defenses

LISBON, Feb. 21.—(P)—The 14 Atlantic foreign ministers are meeting behind closed doors for an up-to-the-moment study of the Russian problem.

A spokesman said U. S. Secretary of State Acheson and his colleagues heard and thrashed over top-level reports on the Soviet Union and its latest policies toward the free world.

Earlier, Allied defense ministers in less than one hour approved a military committee report calling for 50 to 60 divisions to be in the field by the end of 1952.

The report now goes to the council. There the full-dress assembly of foreign, finance and defense ministers must settle a conflict between the Allied chiefs of staff and

W. Averell Harriman's temporary council committee.

The committee says the 1954 target of 100 divisions on active duty or in immediate reserve must be scaled down 12 per cent because the European economies cannot afford the full goal.

THE MILITARY wants to keep the 100 division target, planning production so many divisions could be armed and supported.

Meanwhile, the top military and financial brains of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization were hard at work on the problems of how defensive air bases can be strung across Europe before the 1952 building season is lost.

Before the defense and finance ministers lay blueprints for the air bases, their communication lines and control headquarters.

With these completed, the 14 Western allies could breathe easier despite the dangers of Soviet Russia's Korea-proven jets.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, boss of the alliance's military establishment in Europe, sent down the outline of his needs. What the defense and finance ministers are pondering is: Who will pay how much of their cost?

Acheson at the council's plenary opening session Wednesday sounded an urgent call for development of "concrete military strength" and a warning that defenses so far built "will be of little value unless we finish the job."

Deaths Almost Equal Births Here In January

Deaths almost equalled the number of births during January in Pickaway County.

During the last several months, reports from both city and county health offices have shown births at least doubling the number of deaths in the county.

Last month, however, only 46 births were reported while 36 deaths were recorded—most of them in the older age brackets.

Of the 46 births, 42 were reported in the city while four were reported in the county. Girls outnumbered boys in births during the month, 24 to 22.

County deaths exceeded the number of deaths in Circleville during the period. The record shows 20 deaths occurred in the area surrounding Circleville while 14 were recorded in the city.

LEADING CAUSE of death in the city during January was heart disease with 10, while carcinoma accounted for two deaths and pneumonia and nephritis accounted for one each. One of the city deaths was a stillbirth.

Age range of deaths during the month shows most occurring in the 71-80-year-old bracket, where 15 were reported, while the 81-90-years-old, 15; and 81-90-years-old, 11.

Complete age range of deaths for the month is as follows: 1-10-years-old, four; 11-20-years-old, one; 41-50-years-old, one; 51-60-years-old, two; 61-70-years-old, two; 71-80-years-old, two; 71-80-years-old, 15; and 81-90-years-old, 11.

The statistics were compiled by Miss Mildred Wolfe and Mrs. Harriett Wallace.

Steel Workers Due To Set Up Strike Plans

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 21.—Steel-hungry America should learn by Thursday evening whether the CIO United Steelworkers will go through with a paralyzing strike set for midnight Saturday.

Philip Murray, president of both the CIO and the steelworkers, summoned his top strategy makers here to make the union decision. He called both an executive board meeting and the wage policy committee parley for Thursday. Murray, two other international USW officers and 32 district directors comprise the executive board. The wage committee, which passes on action of the executive board, is made up of the executive board, plus representatives of every USW local in the country.

Some observers felt the union would extend the strike deadline to the Wage Stabilization Board would have more time to recommend a settlement in a controversy over a new contract that expired Jan. 1.

The union wants an 18½ cent hourly pay hike. The average hourly wage is from $1.92 to $1.97 an hour.

The union also is asking a union shop, guaranteed annual wage, improved premium pay and other concessions. The industry says the total demands would add up to an hourly package of 60 cents a man.

North Pole Air Base Workers Get Lush Pay

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—A Senate investigation heard Thursday that workers on a super-secret air base construction program near the North Pole collected more than $3 million in wages before even reaching the job.

Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of Army Engineers, defended these payments as well as salaries at a rate of $13,000 a year for laborers and $17,000 a year for mechanics on the project.

Questions by Downey Rice, counsel for the committee—which was set up as a watchdog group on military spending—brought out the salary figures.

Rice did not indicate how many workers shared the $3 million, but said they drew the pay while enroute to the job by ship and airplane. He said some of them left Norfolk, Va., by ship, expecting to be at the job in 15 days but actually were 42 days on the way.

"This was hazardous beyond anything ever encountered in construction," Pick said, referring to the North Pole work.

2 Gas Truck Men Killed In Flaming Wreck

WILMINGTON, Feb. 21.—A gasoline truck was smashed to bits by a passenger train in nearby Melvin Wednesday, killing its two occupants and splashing flaming fuel oil over the front of the locomotive and the depot.

The small passenger station was destroyed and a grain elevator behind it was damaged.

Two crewmen aboard the Baltimore and Ohio train—Engineer Cliff Graves, 65, and Fireman James Hannah, 37, both of Newark—were burned. They were taken to Clinton Memorial Hospital. The passengers escaped injury.

Killed outright were Thomas A. Wilkinson, 29, and Clifford Floyd Walker, 56, employees of the F. F. Garrett Sinclair Refining Co. Wilkinson was driving the truck. He and Walker were on their way to deliver a barrel of motor oil to a customer north of the village.

An extra crew which was aboard the train took over and continued the Pittsburgh - to - Cincinnati run after a half hour delay.

Walter Ewing, who operates a grocery near the crossing, said he saw the truck stopping to allow a freight train to pass, the occupants not noticing the passenger train approaching in the opposite direction. He said he tried to warn the driver, but his signals went unnoticed and the truck coasted in front of the oncoming train.

Featured in the showing is the "Saragoga," backed by National Homes, a one-floor plan, four-bedroom unit selling at about $12,000.

The model home has been completely decorated by Lancaster merchants, and the prices on all furnishings are available at the showing.

Local residents have been invited to attend the program between 1 p. m. and 8 p. m. Saturday and Sunday. A similar showing is planned for Circleville in the future.

Solons Want More Details On Parleys

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—It's not compulsory, but President Truman has a demand from the House of Representatives that he supply more details on his private talks last month with Winston Churchill.

The "directive" for full information on any troop commitments made to Britain's prime minister was sent to the administration by a rollcall vote of 189 to 143 Wednesday afternoon.

About the same time, however, the President was telling newsmen that he had made no troop commitments to Churchill.

The British prime minister, facing Labor Party opposition, previously has indicated he had received no promises from the U. S. chief executive.

Chairman Richards (D-S.C.) told the House it would "true the day" it compelled the administration to reveal information that might be helpful to Russia.

Richards argued it would be better to let the Kremlin guess what agreements had been made.

Old Stone Ax Stirs Interest Over Nation

COLUMBUS, Feb. 21.—A stone ax from the Neolithic Age (20,000 years ago) is causing quite a commotion here. Even the State Department is interested in it.

The ax was donated to Columbus Goodwill Industries, a charitable organization, about two weeks ago. No one knows who contributed it. Archaeologists speculate the ax originally may have come from Northern Europe, via a returning GI.

The ax is made of a type of flint called "chert." It is highly finished in the style of the "Polished Stone Age."

The story was sent across the nation, and the State Department picked up an ear. Now the department wants to return the ax to "the owning nation." But nobody knows what nation that is.

Officials told the Rev. George M. Evans, executive director of Goodwill Industries, to hold the ax in custody and Rev. Mr. Evans says the government "is going to have to prove its case."

The ax has been seen on a New York television program since Goodwill discovered it. Many persons have offered to buy it and seven claim they own it.

But Rev. Mr. Evans says he's going to wait until he's really convinced before doing anything with the visitor from a long time ago.

Rate Boost Is Given Ohio Associated

COLUMBUS, Feb. 21.—The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio has granted the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. a near-20 per cent emergency rate increase that will mean $728,565 additional yearly revenue.

PUCO said the increase was necessary to complete a $10,490,000 construction and improvement program and to pay for increased maintenance on new equipment.

PUCO Chairman Robert L. Moulton said $198,000 of the increase will be spent on an improved maintenance program. He added that "the evidence showed the company's improvement program will stop if it did not get more money in a hurry."

Ohio Associated, which has headquarters in Marion, applied for a regular rate increase of $1,032,600 annually in June, 1951, later asked the emergency boost.

Protestants against the emergency rate increase were the communities of Jackson, Celina, New Lebanon, Verona, Lewisburg, Englewood, Marion, Oxford, Middleport, Farmersville, Amanda, Waverly, Idaho, Piketon, Beaver, Dover, New Philadelphia, Wellston, Hamilton, Woodstock, Catawba, Pleasant Township in Clark County and Chambers of Commerce from Celina and Oxford.

Deaths Almost Equal Births Here In January

Deaths almost equalled the number of births during January in Pickaway County.

During the last several months, reports from both city and county health offices have shown births a least doubling the number of deaths in the county.

Last month, however, only 46 births were reported while 36 deaths were recorded—most of them in the older age brackets.

Of the 46 births, 42 were reported in the city while four were reported in the county. Girls outnumbered boys in births during the month, 24 to 22.

County deaths exceeded the number of deaths in Circleville during the period. The record shows 20 deaths occurred in the area surrounding Circleville while 14 were recorded in the city.

LEADING CAUSE of death in the city during January was heart disease with 10, while carcinoma accounted for two deaths and pneumonia and nephritis accounted for one each. One of the city deaths was a stillbirth.

Age range of deaths during the month shows most occurring in the 71-80-year-old bracket, where 15 were reported, while the 81-90-year-olds, 15; and 81-90-year-olds, 11.

Complete age range of deaths for the month is as follows: 10-years-old, four; 11-20-years-old, one; 41-50-years-old, one; 51-60-years-old, two; 61-70-years-old, two; 71-80-years-old, two; 71-80-years-old, 15; and 81-90-years-old, 11.

The statistics were compiled by Miss Mildred Wolfe and Mrs. Harriett Wallace.

Steel Workers Due To Set Up Strike Plans

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 21.—(P)—Steel-hungry America should learn by Thursday evening whether the CIO United Steelworkers will go through with a paralyzing strike set for midnight Saturday.

Philip Murray, president of both the CIO and the steelworkers, summoned his top strategy makers here to make the union decision.

He called both an executive board meeting and the wage policy committee parley for Thursday. Murray, two other international USW officers and 32 district directors comprise the executive board. The wage committee, which passes on action of the executive board, is made up of the executive board, plus representatives of every USW local in the country.

Some observers felt the union would extend the strike deadline so the Wage Stabilization Board would have more time to recommend a settlement in a controversy over a new contract that expired Jan. 1.

The union wants an 18 1/2 cent hourly pay hike. The average hourly wage is from $1.92 to $1.97 an hour.

The union also is asking a union shop, guaranteed annual wage, improved premium pay and other concessions. The industry says the total demands would add up to an hourly package of 60 cents a man.

North Pole Air Base Workers Get Lush Pay

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(P)—A Senate investigation heard Thursday that workers on a super-secret air base construction program near the North Pole collected more than $3 million in wages before even reaching the job.

Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of Army Engineers, defended these payments as well as salaries at a rate of $13,000 a year for laborers and $17,000 a year for mechanics on the project.

Questions by Downey Rice, counsel for the committee—which was set up as a watchdog group on military spending—brought out the salary figures.

Rice did not indicate how many workers shared the $3 million, but said they drew the pay while enroute to the job by ship and airplane. He said some of them left Norfolk, Va., by ship, expecting to be at the job in 15 days but actually were 42 days on the way.

"This was hazardous beyond anything ever encountered in construction," Pick said, referring to the North Pole work.

2 Gas Truck Men Killed In Flaming Wreck

WILMINGTON, Feb. 21.—(P)—A gasoline truck was smashed to bits by a passenger train in nearby Melvin Wednesday, killing its two occupants and splashing flaming fuel oil over the front of the locomotive and the depot.

The small passenger station was destroyed and a grain elevator behind it was damaged.

Two crewmen aboard the Baltimore and Ohio train—Engineer Cliff Graves, 65, and Fireman James Hannah, 37, both of Newark—were burned. They were taken to Clinton Memorial Hospital. The passengers escaped injury.

Killed outright were Thomas A. Wilkinson, 29, and Clifford Floyd Walker, 56, employees of the F. F. Garrett Sinclair Refining Co. Wilkinson was driving the truck. He and Walker were on their way to deliver a barrel of motor oil to a customer north of the village.

An extra crew which was aboard the train took over and continued the Pittsburgh-to-Cincinnati run after a half hour delay.

Walter Ewing, who operates a grocery near the crossing, said he saw the truck stopping to allow a freight train to pass, the occupants not noticing the passenger train approaching in the opposite direction. He said he tried to warn the driver, but his signals went unnoticed and the truck coasted in front of the oncoming train.

Prefab Home To Be Shown In Lancaster

Pickaway Countians have been invited to attend a special "open house" in Lancaster Saturday and Sunday, featuring a new model prefabricated home.

The special showing will be at 751 Virginia avenue in Lancaster, immediately to the right after entering the Lancaster corporation limits from Route 22.

Featured in the showing is the "Saratoga," backed by National Homes, a one-floor plan, four-bedroom unit selling at about $12,000.

The model home has been completely decorated by Lancaster merchants, and the prices on all furnishings are available at the showing.

Local residents have been invited to attend the program between 1 p. m. and 8 p. m. Saturday and Sunday. A similar showing is planned for Circleville in the future.

Three similar units also have been constructed in Circleville. The three local units are on Cedar Heights road, one at number 218 and the others on lots seven and nine.

Solons Want More Details On Parleys

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(P)—It's not compulsory, but President Truman has a demand from the House of Representatives that he supply more details on his private talks last month with Winston Churchill.

The "directive" for full information on any troop commitments made to Britain's prime minister was sent to the administration by a rollcall vote of 189 to 143 Wednesday afternoon.

About the same time, however, the President was telling newsmen that he had made no troop commitments to Churchill.

The Labor prime minister, facing British Party opposition, previously has indicated he had received no promises from the U. S. chief executive.

Chairman Richards (D-SC) told the House it would "rue the day" it compelled the administration to reveal information that might be helpful to Russia.

Richards argued it would be better to let the Kremlin guess what agreements had been made.

Old Stone Ax Stirs Interest Over Nation

COLUMBUS, Feb. 21.—(P)—A stone ax from the Neolithic Age (20,000 years ago) is causing quite a commotion here. Even the State Department is interested in it.

The ax was donated to Columbus Goodwill Industries, a charitable organization, about two weeks ago. No one knows who contributed it. Archaeologists speculate the ax originally may have come from Northern Europe, via a returning GI.

The ax is made of a type of flint called "chert." It is highly finished in the style of the "Polished Stone Age."

The story was sent across the nation, and the State Department pricked up an ear. Now the department wants to return the ax to "the owning nation." But nobody knows what nation that is.

Officials told the Rev. George M. Evans, executive director of Goodwill Industries, to hold the ax in custody and Rev. Mr. Evans says the government "is going to have to prove its case."

The ax has been seen on a New York television program since Goodwill discovered it. Many persons have offered to buy it and seven claim they own it.

But Rev. Mr. Evans says he's going to wait until he's really convinced before doing anything with the visitor from a long time ago.

Oil Company Earnings Aid Expansions

Dividends Sacrificed By Stockholders As Firms Reinvest

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Shareholders in American oil companies have been kicking in—voluntarily or not—large and growing sums for the expansion of their industry.

This comes about through the policy of the oil company managements—which the stockholders re-elect—to reinvest the lion's share of the industry's earnings in expanding the oil business.

Over recent years a smaller percentage of profits has been paid out in dividends.

This is the outstanding economic characteristic of the petroleum industry, according to two bankers—Frederick G. Coqueron and Joseph E. Pogue of the petroleum department of the Chase National Bank of New York.

The lion's share has grown steadily through the years 1934 to 1950, the bankers reported at a meeting of the petroleum branch of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

IN 1951 MANY oil companies increased their dividend payments to stockholders. But their profits grew in 1951 also. Only a few have reported on earnings so far, and the amount retained by the industry is not yet known.

The 11 companies reporting show a combined total of $528 million in profits last year, an increase of $83 million, or 18.7 per cent, over 1950 earnings. Even the increased dividends paid out last year will doubtless leave a tidy sum in their treasuries for reinvestment in the business.

Other corporations besides oil companies have also retained large portions of earnings for expansion and reinvestment since World War II.

In the last two years their annual meetings have often been enlivened by shareholders wanting a larger percentage of the profit paid out in dividends.

Annual meetings that soon will be blossoming again probably will hear renewed pleas for more liberal dividend policies. Many companies, however, can point to declining earnings in 1951 as a reason dividends cannot be raised.

Oil Company Earnings Aid Expansions

Dividends Sacrificed By Stockholders As Firms Reinvest

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—(AP)—Shareholders in American oil companies have been kicking in—voluntarily or not—large and growing sums for the expansion of their industry.

This comes about through the policy of the oil company managements—which the stockholders re-elect—to reinvest the lion's share of the industry's earnings in expanding the oil business.

Over recent years a smaller percentage of profits has been paid out in dividends.

This is the outstanding economic characteristic of the petroleum industry, according to two bankers—Frederick G. Coqueron and Joseph E. Pogue of the petroleum department of the Chase National Bank of New York.

The lion's share has grown steadily through the years 1934 to 1950, the bankers reported at a meeting of the petroleum branch of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers.

IN 1951 MANY oil companies increased their dividend payments to stockholders. But their profits grew in 1951 also. Only a few have reported on earnings so far, and the amount retained by the industry is not yet known.

The 11 companies reporting show a combined total of $528 million in profits last year, an increase of $83 million, or 18.7 per cent, over 1950 earnings. Even the increased dividends paid out last year will doubtless leave a tidy sum in their treasuries for reinvestment in the business.

Other corporations besides oil companies have also retained large portions of earnings for expansion and reinvestment since World War II.

In the last two years their annual meetings have often been enlivened by shareholders wanting a larger percentage of the profit paid out in dividends.

Annual meetings that soon will be blossoming again probably will hear renewed pleas for more liberal dividend policies. Many companies, however, can point to declining earnings in 1951 as a reason dividends cannot be raised.

Hunt For Doctor Kills Youngster

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21.—(AP)—A frantic mother went to three places Wednesday night before she could find a doctor to treat her choking, five-year-old daughter.

By the time Mrs. Margaret Verespej got to the third place, Polyclinic Hospital, her little girl, Betty Anne, was dead. The child had swallowed a crayon she was using to color drawings. Mrs. Verespej said she first went to a doctor's house in her neighborhood. The doctor was not in. Then she went to a private clinic, was told no physician was on duty. Her last stop was Polyclinic. By then it was too late.

LEGAL RIGHT FOUND LACKING

Air Force Modifying Regulation On Photos

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The Air Force has disclosed a new policy under which it (1) will not "prohibit" the taking of pictures of plane crashes outside military reservations, but (2) will assign to the press a larger responsibility for keeping secret pictorial information that may help an enemy.

The new regulations were described by James S. Pope, chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, as a "notable contribution to the unceasing battle for the freedom of information and freedom from arbitrary restraints."

In a letter to Air Force headquarters, Pope also said the regulations "shifted to the press a serious responsibility." Pope is executive editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times.

An Air Force spokesman said the regulations were changed after Pope and his committee challenged the legal authority of the Air Force to prohibit the taking of pictures at the scene of accidents outside of military reservations.

THE AIR FORCE said its legal authorities studied the former regulations for many months and came to the conclusion that the legal right was lacking. The spokesman said the new regulations were drawn up after extended consultations with Pope and with the Justice Department.

Under the procedure, Air Force guards and officers at the scene of an off-base accident are authorized to withhold consent for photographs to be taken until it can be determined whether classified (secret) matter is present and exposed to view. Such a determination must be made as quickly as possible. The new regulation provides further:

If classified equipment is exposed it must be covered or removed before consent may be given to civilians to take photographs.

Consent for photographing will be denied if the classified items cannot be removed or covered. In such cases, civilian photographers will be "advised" that the taking of pictures of classified material without permission is a violation of federal law.

Should a photographer insist on taking a picture after being so warned, the Air Force officer or guard on the scene may "demand" that the negative or plate be turned over to the Air Force.

REFUSAL to comply with such a demand will be followed by further advice to the photographer that his failure to comply will make him liable on a felony charge under a 1948 act of Congress. Conviction would be punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000 or ten years imprisonment.

If, after these processes have been followed by the Air Force authorities on the spot, and the photographer continues to withhold an exposed negative or plate, the Air Force will notify the nearest FBI representative and the photographer will be "requested" to remain until the FBI agent's arrival.

If it is determined there is no classified items involved or such items are not exposed to view, "consent will be given for the taking of photographs by civilian photographers."

Pope's letter recalled that the old regulations purported to give authority to officers and enlisted men to "forbid" photographs of crashes on civilian territory.

"The prohibition led to frequent clashes," Pope wrote, "and in every case of which we have a record in our files there was an absence of any showing of military security being involved."

LEGAL RIGHT FOUND LACKING

Air Force Modifying Regulation On Photos

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The Air Force has disclosed a new policy under which it (1) will not "prohibit" the taking of pictures of plane crashes outside military reservations, but (2) will assign to the press a larger responsibility for keeping secret pictorial information that may help an enemy.

The new regulations were described by James S. Pope, chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, as a "notable contribution to the unceasing battle for the freedom of information and freedom from arbitrary restraints."

In a letter to Air Force headquarters, Pope also said the regulations "shifted to the press a serious responsibility." Pope is executive editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times.

An Air Force spokesman said the regulations were changed after Pope and his committee challenged the legal authority of the Air Force to prohibit the taking of pictures at the scene of accidents outside of military reservations.

THE AIR FORCE said its legal authorities studied the former regulations for many months and came to the conclusion that the legal right was lacking. The

- West Tacoma Newsprint Co., Steilacoom, Wash., $5 million.

STOCKTON, Calif., Feb. 21.—"I have been poor," said the last will of retired rancher Aladino Belluomini. "I know and understand the difficulties that beset people of limited means when confronted by illness, dis-ease or injury."

So Belluomini, who died a week ago at the age of 61, left his estate of more than $200,000 to San Joaquin County to provide the latest scientific treatment in medicines for the poor. Belluomini came from Italy in 1913 and began work as a day laborer.

Weekly Food Review

By Associated Press

By Associated Press

Retail prices of lamb and a handful of fresh vegetables were trimmed a little in many stores this week as supplies increased, but on the whole food prices changes were minor.

Wholesale butter prices in some cities climbed to the highest level since the spring of 1948, chiefly because storage stocks were very low and milk was being diverted into more profitable fluid markets.

Some major stores held the retail price line of last weekend, to maintain volume, but dealers said many of these were selling at just about the "break-even" level. Other stores marked up prices as much as four cents a pound.

Egg prices edged up about two cents a dozen in many places, but were still rated in the best-buy class by most storekeepers and were cheapest in well over a year at most markets.

ON THE FRESH produce counters, new cabbage, peppers, eggplant, peas, eastern potatoes and smaller sizes of celery were mostly lower, reflecting bigger supplies.

Big western potatoes, known to many families as Idahoes and often favored for baking, continued relatively scarce in large Midwest and eastern markets. There was no shortage of eastern or southern potatoes, however.

Foods showing up most frequently on stores' lists of advertised specials for the coming weekend include:

Turkeys, pork loins, hams, stewing chickens, legs and shoulders of lamb, eggs, frozen fish, new carrots, citrus fruits, fresh peas and cheese.

The Agriculture Department's list of most-plentiful foods for the thrifty buying this week: Lettuce, oranges, eggs and dried prunes.

Four large grocers associations have petitioned the OPS to suspend price controls on all food and food products immediately at both retail and wholesale, saying virtually all foods now are in plentiful supply and are selling below price ceilings.

VIDEO VS. MOVIES

SURVEY BY the Office of City Collector Prendergast reveals that 91 of Chicago's moving picture theaters went out of business in 1951. In 1950, 25 suspended, 15 in 1949 and 6 in 1948. Television is principally blamed for this slump by those who made the survey.

Mere enumeration of the number of closed movie houses does not show that in Chicago there has been a decline of 25 per cent in the total number of movie-goers within a year. Many of these theaters doubtless were old and outmoded and offered low-grade pictures. Others may have been in crowded areas where both afternoon and evening parking difficulties cut attendance.

In such instances, sitting at home before television (there are now 1,500,000 TV sets in the Chicago area) despite criticism of the low average quality of TV performances, may in the years of its greatest upsurge have appealed to a sense of comfort besides obviating the problem of baby-sitters.

Television will be a continuous competitor of the movies. But it has its limitations as to range of scenes displayed and is unavailable for those that are panoramic. It may be that the golden age of the movies has passed, but Variety, the weekly magazine which keeps its finger on the pulse of every phase of entertainment outside the general realm of sports, notes something that is significant.

This is the trend of the movies to concentrate on "big" pictures, paying high prices for successful plays or the film rights to outstanding novels. Better movies will compel better video.

VICTIM OF PROGRESS

IN NO OTHER facet of American life has there been greater progress in the past 50 years than in the publication and distribution of newspapers. Improved facilities, wider availability of news services, more rapid distribution as a result of modern transportation, have made it possible for every household to have the advantage of both daily and weekly publications.

What has become known as the country weekly played an important part in the early history of the newspaper industry. With limited equipment, often referred to as a "shirttail full of type" and a press of the most primitive character, country editors were able to provide a weekly publication for the smallest communities.

This was made possible largely by what was known in the trade as "patent insides" which came to grassroots publishers half printed, and which provided news and features of a general character.

The Western Newspaper Union, which at one time served more than 7,000 weekly papers, has announced the complete discontinuation of this service. This may mean little to the general reading public, but in the newspaper world it is big news, marking a milestone in newspaper history.

Half a century ago millions of readers had no other contact with the outside world except the local paper and its patent insides. It now succumbs to progress.

They Earn A Living By Playing

CAPE MAY, N. J.—(AP)—Why work for a living if you can make a living by playing?

The pleasure of finding they could turn a hobby into a business has been a real adventure in contentment for Ken and Marge Ewer.

They are the happy proprietors of the Cape May Country Store, a unique paradise for tinkers and people who like to buy things like old coffee grinders, cuspids and beaver hats. It is also a thriving arts and handicrafts center.

Four years ago Ewer was a successful, well-paid executive of a Midwest metals firm. But he had insomnia, wasn't really having any fun, and fretted over whether he was saving enough money to pay for the ulcers he felt he was getting.

One night he and his wife talked it over and decided their way of life wasn't worth the worry.

"I thought before I started paying out everything to the doctors we might as well do a little real living," Ken said.

He quit his job and came to this resort center to rest.

"After three days of sitting in rocking chair on the front porch I decided that wasn't living either," Ken recalled.

What could they do? He and his wife shared a lifelong interest in antiques and handicraft. They decided to make their hobby their career, to create a place where people who like to use their hands could work in peace and maybe turn a small profit, too.

"I had always been a tinker-

These Days

Up to the time of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Cabinet was an important agency, often including men so distinguished that they strengthened the confidence of the people in their government.

When, for instance, Abraham Lincoln became President, he was little and not too favorably known to the American people. His Secretary of State, William H. Seward, was probably the most distinguished man in the country at that time; Salmon P. Chase, his Secretary of the Treasury, Simon Cameron, Secretary of War, Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy, were outstanding political figures. Washington's Cabinet, including Jefferson, Hamilton, Edmund Randolph, was, to say the least, a strong body.

Warren G. Harding was not a great President nor had he been a particularly distinguished citizen and Senator. Yet, his Cabinet included such persons as Charles E. Hughes, Andrew Mellon, and Herbert Hoover, who were more competent than the President. It also included Albert B. Fall and Harry M. Daugherty of whom the less said the better. Coolidge appointed Harlan F. Stone in Daugherty's place—an appointment which added respect to his Administration.

Herbert Hoover's Cabinet was particularly noteworthy, including Henry L. Stimson, Ogden Mills, Patrick J. Hurley, Charles Francis Adams, Ray Lyman Wilbur.

Franklin D. Roosevelt had some unusually strong men in his Cabinet, but he did not use them well. For instance, during the whole career of Cordell Hull as Secretary of State, Roosevelt was his own Secretary of State, operating through Hull's subordinates.

Such men as Raymond Moley, Sumner Welles, Edward Stettinius were closer to the President than their chief. Often Mr. Hull did not know what the President was doing concerning the foreign policy. Often Roosevelt by-passed him by going through the Treasury or the War Department. Often he acted through individuals, like Harry Hopkins, even when he was unconnected with any department of government.

Harry Truman has practically destroyed the Cabinet as a working team engaged in aiding the President in the determination of policy. He has had four Secretaries of State: Edward Stettinius, James F. Byrnes, George C. Marshall, and Dean Acheson; he has had four Secretaries of Defense: James V. Forrestal, Louis Johnson, George C. Marshall, and Robert A. Lovett.

Two were dismissed; one resigned. These are his two most important departments. No member of his Cabinet at the present moment is a great national figure, although Dean Acheson, the Secretary of State, does now command a following. However, before he was appointed to his present high office, he was hardly known to the people.

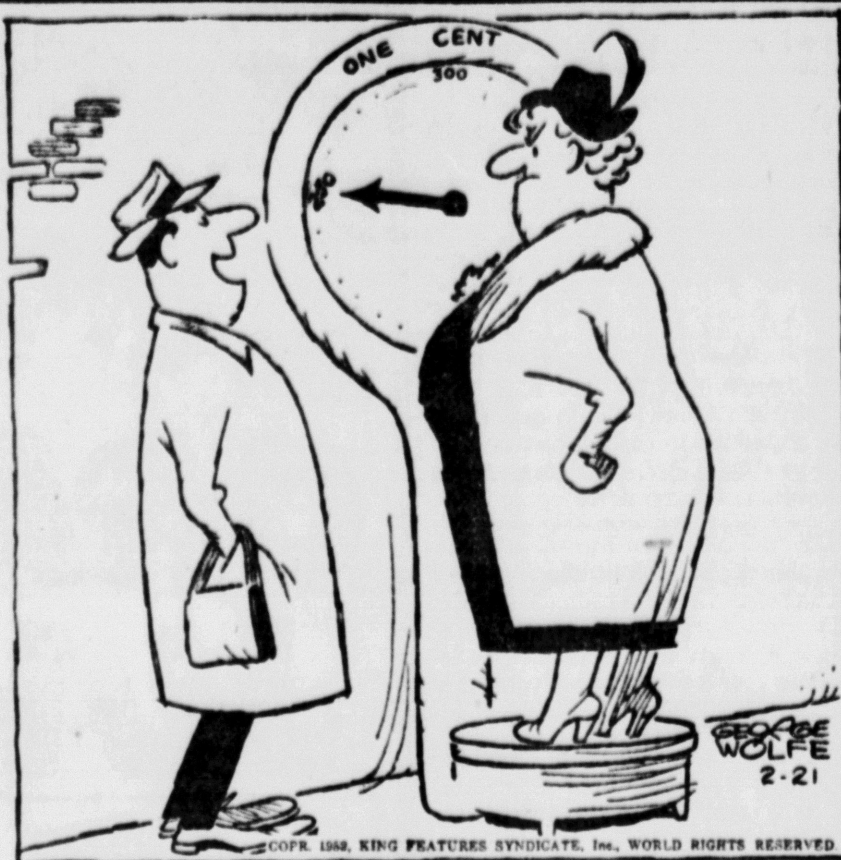

Such officials as Oscar Chapman, Secretary of Interior; Charles Brannan, Secretary of Agriculture; J. Howard McGrath, Attorney General; Maurice Tobin, Secretary of Labor, are local politicians of local importance. None of them commands national respect. John Snyder, the Secretary of the Treasury, while one of the ablest men in this Administration, is not in any sense a political personality. His was a strictly personal relationship and remains such.

Economic policies, so overwhelmingly important in these days, are determined not by the Cabinet but by the President's economic advisers led by Leon Keyserling, an obscure person hardly known to the people.

The Treasury quarrels with the Federal Reserve System and the RFC has become a pawnshop. While it is now impossible to conduct the foreign and defense policies,

Alcohol Given By Injection To Ease Post-Operative Pain

By HERMAN N. BUNDENSEN, M.D.

DOCTORS are returning to an old pain-killer, alcohol, to reduce discomfort after operations. They are now often giving it by injection directly into the veins.

Modern anesthesia, of course, opened a whole new era of surgery. But hundreds of years before this discovery, surgeons were performing major operations. They had several drugs that would reduce pain, and they used them wherever possible. One common practice was to give the patient quick doses of strong alcoholic liquor until he was so drunk that he felt little pain and didn't worry about it.

Depresses Pain Center
Rather recently, it was found that alcohol is still of service after operations. It is safe and strong enough to use in place of pain-relieving drugs like opiates or morphine. While it is not so strong as morphine, it has the advantage of depressing the pain center in the brain before it acts on the breathing center.

There is little danger of alcohol poisoning when it is used under proper supervision. Complications resulting from it have been few, and when given by injection it does not appear to leave a "hang-over." It was also discovered that patients do not suffer from headache, vomiting, or distended abdomen when alcohol is given in this way after an operation.

Injections of five to ten per cent solutions of alcohol usually give the proper rest and numbing of pain. In addition, the alcohol provides adequate calories for the patient's nourishment.

No Undesirable Effects

In one test, alcohol injections were given to 2000 patients who were in pain after operations. It was found that the treatment cut by one-third their need for sedatives and pain-relieving drugs. None of these patients showed undesirable effects from the alcohol.

Sometimes, however, if alcohol is given too rapidly, it can cause a patient to become restless and confused. This is one of the reasons it should be used only when there is a nurse at the bedside to watch the patient and control the flow of alcohol. It should never be used when a patient is in shock, or if he has epilepsy or liver damage.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. S.: My husband has a cataract. His doctor does not believe an operation is necessary at this time because the cataract has not reached the stage for operation. I am fearful my husband may lose his sight completely and will not be able to be helped by surgery.

Answer: A cataract must be mature or ripe in order to be removed. It is well for your husband to follow his physician's advice as to the most suitable time for removal of the cataract.

SYNOPSIS
When little Hong, a nondescript Chinese drifter leaves a small package in the care of Johnny Liddell, a New York detective, and when presently government agents swoop to confiscate that package, and when later Hong is found murdered in a squid flat, then Johnny knows that he has a mystery on his hands. Chinatown's elegant boss chief, Jimmy Kaiming, denies having any knowledge of the crime when Liddell contacts him, but engages the detective to pursue the case. Perhaps little Hong had been a member of Ben Ceria's up-town mob, a gang that had recently invaded Chinatown's gambling racket. Liddell enlists the aid of an old friend, Jim Kelly of the Daily Advance. Muggsy Kelly, an attractive girl reporter, is assigned to the story. In a quaint Italian restaurant she meets with Johnny where they discuss the Hong affair. But as they talk, gunmen break into the room, slugging Liddell, searching his clothes in the hope of retrieving the mysterious package.

CHAPTER TWELVE

AS SOON as the policeman's legs had disappeared in the stair well, Liddell picked up his hat, brushed himself off. "Let's get this stuff together and get out of here before he gets back. We've got places to go."

Muggsy let him help her into her coat, scooped the clippings up from the floor, dumped them back in the envelope while Liddell returned his belongings to his pockets.

"For once in your life you're right. You have got places to go. Bed. You're going home to bed. My home."

Liddell forced a grin. "How you do talk. What would your father say?"

Muggsy grinned. "Let my father talk for himself." The grin faded when Liddell winced putting his hat on. "Seriously, Johnny, I think my place is safest tonight. They've been to your office, they followed you here. The next place they'll try is your apartment. And you're in no condition to handle them."

"But I haven't got the time to go to bed. I've got to get these guys, Muggsy," Liddell protested. "You saw them. You can probably pick them out at Identification and we can get started. Now we've got something to go on."

Muggsy nodded. "You'll have all day tomorrow for that. I'll be down to headquarters with you the first thing in the morning. But tonight we're going home and take care of that skull of yours!"

The following morning, Johnny Liddell and Muggsy Kelly were at Center street, asking for Inspector Herlehy. The sergeant at the desk shook his head doubtfully at their prospects for getting in, was prevailed upon to check his hunch with a phone call, reversed himself.

"The inspector says for you to go right up," he said.

Inspector Herlehy sat slumped behind the battered old desk in his cubbyhole office. He waved to them as they came through the door, motioned them into the old-fashioned wooden armchairs across the desk from him.

"Looks like crime is picking up, with you two working in harness again," he greeted them. "What's on your minds?"

"As though you didn't know," Liddell grinned. "I have been hearing some things about you, at that."

He reached over, picked up a typewritten flimsy from the tray on the corner of his desk. "Liddell appears on two reports turned in during the past 24 hours. Found a body in Chinatown, was a witness to a stickup in Brooklyn. Busy little fellow, aren't you?"

The inspector rolled his eyes upward, regarded Liddell questioning. He chuckled placidly on his customary wad of gum. "Decide to take us into your confidence?"

"We could use some help," Liddell conceded.

Herlehy shifted to a more comfortable position on his hard wood seat. "Do tell."

"All right to smoke?" Liddell asked. The inspector nodded, watched without comment while Liddell and the girl lit up. "What do you want to know?" Liddell asked him.

"Take me from the beginning," Herlehy suggested.

"You got Crossan's report, so you know all about the package Hong left with me and the phony T-men who picked it up." Herlehy nodded, didn't interrupt. "I had no intention of working on the Hong murder until they pulled that. Well, now I'm on the case with both feet. The agency has been retained by Jimmy Kaiming to get the killer."

Herlehy raised his eyebrows, didn't miss a beat on his gun. "Kaiming thinks Ben Ceria may be mixed up in the killing."

"Why?" Herlehy wanted to know.

Liddell shrugged. "A hunch, I guess. He figures Hong was trying to muscle into the Gee Faw racket in Chinatown, maybe stepped on Ceria's toes or maybe crossed him."

Herlehy nodded for him to go on. "I had a look at the fake T-men who got the package. I figured they might be some of Ceria's men, so I had Mugs dig up the Advance file on Ceria and his mob."

"Find anything?" Liddell shook his head. "Nothing much. While we were going through it, three guns busted into Luigi's and stuck us up. Muggsy got a good look at the head man and thinks she may be able to pick him out of the files in Identification."

Herlehy shifted the wad of gum from one side of his mouth to the other. "Could be. But first, what were they after, Liddell?"

"I don't know, inspector. That's

SURVEY BY the Office of City Collector Prendergast reveals that 91 of Chicago's moving picture theaters went out of business in 1951. In 1950, 25 suspended, 15 in 1949 and 6 in 1948. Television is principally blamed for this slump by those who made the survey.

Mere enumeration of the number of closed movie houses does not show that in Chicago there has been a decline of 25 per cent in the total number of movie-goers within a year. Many of these theaters doubtless were old and outmoded and offered low-grade pictures. Others may have been in crowded areas where both afternoon and evening parking difficulties cut attendance.

In such instances, sitting at home before television (there are now 1,500,000 TV sets in the Chicago area) despite criticism of the low average quality of TV performances, may in the years of its greatest upsurge have appealed to a sense of comfort besides obviating the problem of baby-sitters.

Television will be a continuous competitor of the movies. But it has its limitations as to range of scenes displayed and is unavailable for those that are panoramic. It may be that the golden age of the movies has passed, but Variety, the weekly magazine which keeps its finger on the pulse of every phase of entertainment outside the general realm of sports, notes something that is significant.

This is the trend of the movies to concentrate on "big" pictures, paying high prices for successful plays or the film rights to outstanding novels. Better movies will compel better video.

VICTIM OF PROGRESS

IN NO OTHER facet of American life has there been greater progress in the past 50 years than in the publication and distribution of newspapers. Improved facilities, wider availability of news services, more rapid distribution as a result of modern transportation, have made it possible for every household to have the advantage of both daily and weekly publications.

What has become known as the country weekly played an important part in the early history of the newspaper industry. With limited equipment, often referred to as a "shirttail full of type" and a press of the most primitive character, country editors were able to provide a weekly publication for the smallest communities.

This was made possible largely by what was known in the trade as "patent insides" which came to grassroots publishers half printed, and which provided news and features of a general character.

The Western Newspaper Union, which at one time served more than 7,000 weekly papers, has announced the complete discontinuation of this service. This may mean little to the general reading public, but in the newspaper world it is big news, marking a milestone in newspaper history.

Half a century ago millions of readers had no other contact with the outside world except the local paper and its patent insides. It now succumbs to progress.

They Earn A Living By Playing

CAPE MAY, N. J.—Why work for a living if you can make a living by playing?

The pleasure of finding they could turn a hobby into a business has been a real adventure in contentment for Ken and Marge Ewer.

They are the happy proprietors of the Cape May Country Store, a unique paradise for tinkers and people who like to buy things like old coffee grinders, cuspids and beaver hats. It is also a thriving arts and handicrafts center.

Four years ago Ewer was a successful, well-paid executive of a Midwest metals firm. But he had insomnia, wasn't really having any fun, and fretted over whether he was saving enough money to pay for the ulcers he felt he was getting.

One night he and his wife talked it over and decided their way of life wasn't worth the worry.

"I thought before I started paying out everything to the doctors we might as well do a little real living," Ken said.

He quit his job and came to this resort center to rest.

"After three days of sitting in rocking chair on the front porch I decided that wasn't living either," Ken recalled.

What could they do? He and his wife shared a lifelong interest in antiques and handicrafts. They decided to make their hobby their career, to create a place where people who like to use their hands could work in peace and maybe turn a small profit, too.

These Days

Up to the time of Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Cabinet was an important agency, often including men so distinguished that they strengthened the confidence of the people in their government.

When, for instance, Abraham Lincoln became President, he was little and not too favorably known to the American people. His Secretary of State, William H. Seward, was probably the most distinguished man in the country at that time; Salmon P. Chase, his Secretary of the Treasury, Simon Cameron, Secretary of War, Gideon Welles, Secretary of the Navy, were outstanding political figures. Washington's Cabinet, including Jefferson, Hamilton, Edmund Randolph, was, to say the least, a strong body.

Warren G. Harding was not a great President nor had he been a particularly distinguished citizen and Senator. Yet, his Cabinet included such persons as Charles E. Hughes, Andrew Mellon, and Herbert Hoover, who were more competent than the President. It also included Albert B. Fall and Harry M. Daugherty of whom the less said the better. Coolidge appointed Harlan F. Stone in Daugherty's place—an appointment which added respect to his Administration.

Herbert Hoover's Cabinet was particularly noteworthy, including Henry L. Stimson, Ogden Mills, Patrick J. Hurley, Charles Francis Adams, Ray Lyman Wilbur.

Franklin D. Roosevelt had some unusually strong men in his Cabinet, but he did not use them well. For instance, during the whole career of Cordell Hull as Secretary of State, Roosevelt was his own Secretary of State, operating through Hull's subordinates.

Such men as Raymond Moley, Sumner Welles, Edward Stettinius were closer to the President than their chief. Often Mr. Hull did not know what the President was doing concerning the foreign policy. Often Roosevelt by-passed him by going through the Treasury or the War Department. Often he acted through individuals, like Harry Hopkins, even when he was unconnected with any department of government.

Harry Truman has practically destroyed the Cabinet as a working team engaged in aiding the President in the determination of policy. He has had four Secretaries of State: Edward Stettinius, James F. Byrnes, George C. Marshall, and Dean Acheson; he has had four Secretaries of Defense: James V. Forrestal, Louis Johnson, George C. Marshall, and Robert A. Lovett.

Two were dismissed; one resigned. These are his two most important departments. No member of his Cabinet at the present moment is a great national figure, although Dean Acheson, the Secretary of State, does now command a following. However, before he was appointed to his present high office, he was hardly known to the people.

Such officials as Oscar Chapman, Secretary of Interior; Charles Brannan, Secretary of Agriculture; J. Howard McGrath, Attorney General; Maurice Tobin, Secretary of Labor, are local politicians of local importance. None of them commands national respect. John Snyder, the Secretary of the Treasury, while one of the ablest men in this Administration, is not in any sense a political personality. His was a strictly personal relationship and remains such.

Economic policies, so overwhelmingly important in these days, are determined not by the Cabinet but by the President's economic advisers led by Leon Keyserling, an obscure person hardly known to the people.

The Treasury quarrels with the Federal Reserve System and the RFC has become a pawnshop. While it is now impossible to conduct the foreign and defense policies, (Continued on Page Eleven)

Alcohol Given By Injection To Ease Post-Operative Pain

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DOCTORS are returning to an old pain-killer, alcohol, to reduce discomfort after operations. They are now often giving it by injection directly into the veins.

Modern anesthesia, of course, opened a whole new era of surgery. But hundreds of years before this discovery, surgeons were performing major operations. They had several drugs that would reduce pain, and they used them wherever possible. One common practice was to give the patient quick doses of strong alcoholic liquor until he was so drunk that he felt little pain and didn't worry about it.

Depresses Pain Center
Rather recently, it was found that alcohol is still of service after operations. It is safe and strong enough to use in place of pain-relieving drugs like opiates or morphine. While it is not so strong as morphine, it has the advantage of depressing the pain center in the brain before it acts on the breathing center.

There is little danger of alcohol poisoning when it is used under proper supervision. Complications resulting from it have been few and when given by injection it does not appear to leave a "hang-over." It was also discovered that patients do not suffer from headache, vomiting, or distended abdomen when alcohol is given in this way after an operation.

Injections of five to ten per cent solutions of alcohol usually give the proper rest and numbing of pain. In addition, the alcohol provides adequate calories for the patient's nourishment.

No Undesirable Effects

In one test, alcohol injections were given to 2000 patients who were in pain after operations. It was found that the treatment cut by one-third their need for sedatives and pain-relieving drugs. None of these patients showed undesirable effects from the alcohol.

Sometimes, however, if alcohol is given too rapidly, it can cause a patient to become restless and confused. This is one of the reasons it should be used only when there is a nurse at the bedside to watch the patient and control the flow of alcohol. It should never be used when a patient is in shock, or if he has epilepsy or liver damage.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. S.: My husband has a cataract. His doctor does not believe an operation is necessary at this time because the cataract has not reached the stage for operation. I am fearful my husband may lose his sight completely and will not be able to be helped by surgery.

Answer: A cataract must be mature or ripe in order to be removed. It is well for your husband to follow his physician's advice as to the most suitable time for removal of the cataract.

When little Hong, a nondescript Chinese drifter leaves a small package in the care of Johnny Liddell, a New York detective, and when presently government agents swoop to confiscate that package, and when later Hong is found murdered in a squalid flat, then Johnny knows that he has a mystery on his hands. Chinatown's elegant tong chief, Jimmy Kaiming, denies having any knowledge of the crime when Liddell contacts him, but engages the detective to pursue the case. Perhaps little Hong had been a member of Ben Cerla's uptown mob, a gang that had recently invaded Chinatown's gambling racket. Liddell enlists the aid of an old friend, Jim Mugsy, of the Daily Advance. Mugsy Kiley, an attractive girl reporter, is assigned to the story. In a quiet Italian restaurant she meets with Johnny where they discuss the Hong affair. But as they talk, gunshots break into the room, slugging Liddell, searching his clothes in the hope of retrieving the mysterious package.

CHAPTER TWELVE
AS SOON as the policeman's legs had disappeared in the stair well, Liddell picked up his hat, brushed himself off. "Let's get this stuff together and get out of here before he gets back. We've got places to go."

Mugsy let him help her into her car, scooped the clippings up from the floor, dumped them back in the envelope while Liddell returned his belongings to his pockets. "For once in your life you're right. You have got places to go. Bed. You're going home to bed. My home."

Liddell forced a grin. "How you do talk. What would your father say?"

Mugsy grinned. "Let my father talk for himself." The grin faded when Liddell winced putting his hat on. "Seriously, Johnny, I think my place is safest tonight. They've been to your office, they followed you here. The next place they'll try is your apartment. And you're in no condition to handle them."

"But I haven't got the time to go to bed. I've got to get these guys, Mugsy," Liddell protested. "You saw them. You can probably pick them out at Identification and we can get started. Now we've got something to go on."

Mugsy nodded. "You'll have all day tomorrow for that. I'll go down to headquarters with you the first thing in the morning. But tonight we're going home and take care of that skull of yours!"

The following morning, Johnny Liddell and Mugsy Kiley were at Center street, asking for Inspector Herley. The sergeant at the desk shook his head doubtfully at their prospects for getting in, was prevailed upon to check his hunch with a phone call, reversed his self.

"The inspector says for you to go right up," he said. Inspector Herley sat slumped behind the battered old desk in his cubbyhole office. He waved to them as they came through the door, motioned them into the old-fashioned wooden armchairs across the desk from him.

"Looks like crime is picking up, with you two working in harness again," he greeted them. "What's on your minds?"

"As though you didn't know," Liddell growled. Herley grinned. "I have been hearing some things about you, at that." He reached over, picked up a typewritten flimsy from the tray on the corner of his desk. "Liddell appears on two reports turned in during the past 24 hours. Found a body in Chinatown, was a witness to a stickup in Brooklyn. Busy little fellow, aren't you?"

The inspector rolled his eyes upward, regarded Liddell questioning. He chewed placidly on his customary wad of gum. "Decide to take us into your confidence?"

"We could use some help," Liddell conceded. Herley shifted to a more comfortable position on his hard wood seat. "Do tell."

"All right to smoke?" Liddell asked. The inspector nodded, watched without comment while Liddell and the girl lit up. "What do you want to know?" Liddell asked him.

"Take me from the beginning," Herley suggested. "You got Crossan's report, so you know all about the package Hong left with me and the phony T-men who picked it up?"

Herley raised his eyebrows, didn't miss a beat on his gum. "Kaiming thinks Ben Cerla may be mixed up in the killing."

"Why?" Herley wanted to know. Liddell shrugged. "A hunch, I guess. He figures Hong was trying to muscle into the Gee Faw racket in Chinatown, maybe stepped on Cerla's toes or maybe crossed him."

Herley nodded for him to go on. "I had a look at the fake T-men who got the package. I figured they might be some of Cerla's men, so I had Mugsy dig up the Advance file on Cerla and his mob."

"Find anything?" Liddell shook his head. "Nothing much. While we were going through it, three guys busted into Luigi's and stuck us up. Mugsy got a good look at the head man and thinks she may be able to pick him out of the files in Identification."

Herley shifted the wad of gum from one side of his mouth to the other. "Could be. But first, what were they after, Liddell?"

"I don't know, inspector. That's all I can tell you."

Herley looked at Liddell. "What's the package?"

"Helping others who need assistance at this time should bring reward. A full measure of good fortune is predicted for you, so push forward with confidence. Many fine qualities and a kind disposition are indicated for today's child."

Concert Pianist Plays Three Numbers At Annual DAR Tea And Guest Day

Senator Walcutt Is Presented

Seventy members and their guests attended the annual patriotic tea and guest day, given in Presbyterian church by Pickaway Plains chapter, Daughters of American Revolution.

Highlighting the afternoon program was the presentation of Miss Jessie Peters, a Columbus concert pianist, who entertained the group with three selections.

Miss Peters played: "Chorale, Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," by Bach-Hess; "Fantasie, Opus 49," and "Minute Waltz," by Chopin.

Mrs. Fred L. Tipton, member of the program committee, introduced Senator Roscoe Walcutt who traced the ancestry of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. He also spoke of the high principles which characterized both their administrations.

Mr. Walcutt stressed the educating of school children in sound American history to "Preserve the American way of life."

Mrs. Richard Hedges, program chairman, presented Mrs. Bernard Young, commissioner of Circleville and Pickaway County Girl Scout Association, who talked on the principles of Scouting.

Mrs. Young reviewed the development of Scouting from its origin to the present day when there are one and a half million members of the organization.

Mrs. Young also said that there are at present 126 adults promoting Scouting in the County and that: "These leaders regard their efforts as a blessed privilege, teaching Scouts to take an active part in community life, to cooperate with others and to assume responsibility."

She concluded with: "Sincerity from leaders, high ideals taught in the home, church and school — all these aid Scouting by teaching the Scout to see things, to know how to do it and be willing to do it."

Mrs. Young introduced Miss Shirley Dunlap, a senior Scout. Miss Dunlap explained her badges and told of the experience gained in earning each of them.

Tea was served, following the program, with Regent Mrs. Watt and Mrs. W. Emerson Downing serving guests at the Madeira linen covered table which was centered

How To Be Both Mother And A Person Is Told

A talk on, "Mother Is a Person," was given by Mrs. Sterling Poling at a meeting of Child Study Club in the home of Mrs. Francis McGinnis of Watt street.

In her address, which concerned the problem of mother's activities outside the home, Mrs. Poling said:

"Quite often a mother is forced, she feels to make a decision between being first a mother, or first a wife. Usually in this case the husband is the loser, because children demand attention and must have services that a husband can live without."

"However, to often it has developed that a marriage can not live in a household where a husband always comes out second best with mother's time, energy and attention.

"It is also true that a mother cannot be a happy well-adjusted person, friend, neighbor or wife if she is constantly at the beck and call of small children."

"I heard an Ohio mother of the year, a few years ago, tell her audience that her husband, a prominent Cincinnati doctor, had often said that one of the finest things about their marriage was that she had kept up with the times, that she could discuss with him intelligently any subject which presented itself."

"Of course the problem is always, how in a day of only 24 hours can a mother do dishes, diapers and dusting; attend club meetings; PTA; serve as a Scout den mother; read the paper, a current book; listen to the latest news broadcasts; be the Indian who is burned at the stake, the horse in a wild West game or a guest at a doll tea party; cook three meals and look like a glamour girl, freshly bathed, combed and dressed for her best beau when he appears at the door at five o'clock.

"In this day and age the mother who devotes her life and herself to her children is not only old fashioned but almost extinct. Even the authorities on child care are advising us to neglect our children for their own good and the psychiatrists are warning us to make a life for ourselves when our children are young and not to lose our identity or personalities to our jobs of being mothers lest at 45 to 50 we be left with nothing but a group of neurosis when our children have grown up and are making a life for themselves."

"Let's keep our children near to us and dear to us but let's not be just Susie Brown's mother. Let's be Mrs. Brown, the secretary of the PTA; that clever Helen Brown who designs her own clothes and raises such beautiful African violets or that Harry Brown's wife who always goes to the football games with him."

Mrs. Poling concluded with the advice, "Let's not be just mothers. Let's be a person, too."

During the business meeting, a donation was voted to the Red Cross and the Spring conference

Good Schools Are Discussed

Mrs. Gerald Patrick presided at the meeting of Pickaway Township Parent Teacher Organization, held Thursday evening in the school auditorium.

Mr. Walcott stressed the educating of school children in sound American history to "Preserve the American way of life."

Mrs. Richard Hedges, program chairman, presented Mrs. Bernard Young, commissioner of Circleville and Pickaway County Girl Scout Association, who talked on the principles of Scouting.

Mrs. Young reviewed the development of Scouting from its origin to the present day when there are one and a half million members of the organization.

Mrs. Young also said that there are at present 126 adults promoting Scouting in the County and that: "These leaders regard their efforts as a blessed privilege, teaching Scouts to take an active part in community life, to cooperate with others and to assume responsibility."

She concluded with: "Sincerity from leaders, high ideals taught in the home, church and school — all these aid Scouting by teaching the Scout to see things, to know how to do it and be willing to do it."

Mrs. Young introduced Miss Shirley Dunlap, a senior Scout. Miss Dunlap explained her badges and told of the experience gained in earning each of them.

Tea was served, following the program, with Regent Mrs. Watt and Mrs. W. Emerson Downing serving guests at the Madeira linen covered table which was centered with an arrangement of red carnations, flanked by white tapers. The patriotic color scheme was completed with blue napkins.

Out-of-town guests invited for the event were: Mrs. Isaac W. Millar and Mrs. H. O. Caldwell of Lockbourne; Miss Mary Frances Decker, Miss Kathryn Decker and Mrs. Richard Peters of Ashville; Mrs. A. W. Marion of Columbus; Mrs. Dennis Dresbach and Mrs. Ore J. Rittenour of Kingston and Mrs. Stella Wilson of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Mrs. Sterley Croman was chairman of the hostess committee. Other hostesses were, Mrs. Charles May, Mrs. H. O. Pile, Miss Elsie Jewell, Miss Betty McCoy, Miss Bertha Warner, Miss Martha Warner, Mrs. Paul Mattheas, Mrs. Helen Black Anderson, Mrs. Elliott Miller, Mrs. T. E. Wilson, Miss Edith Haswell, Mrs. Noah Spangler, Mrs. Hervey Sweyer, Mrs. W. L. Mack, Mrs. Clarence Squire, Mrs. Doyle Haas and Mrs. Henry Lewis.

How To Be Both Mother And A Person Is Told

A talk on, "Mother Is A Person," was given by Mrs. Sterling Poling at a meeting of Child Study Club in the home of Mrs. Francis McGinnis of Watt street.

In her address, which concerned the problem of mother's activities outside the home, Mrs. Poling said:

"Quite often a mother is forced, she feels to make a decision between being first a mother, or first a wife. Usually in this case the husband is the loser, because children demand attention and must have services that a husband can live without."

"However, to often it has developed that a marriage can not live in a household where a husband always comes out second best with mother's time, energy and attention."

"It is also true that a mother cannot be a happy well-adjusted person, friend, neighbor or wife if she is constantly at the beck and call of small children."

"I heard an Ohio mother of the year, a few years ago, tell her audience that her husband, a prominent Cincinnati doctor, had often said that one of the finest things about their marriage was that she had kept up with the times, that she could discuss with him intelligently any subject which presented itself."

"Of course the problem is always, how in a day of only 24 hours can a mother do dishes, diapers and dusting; attend club meetings, PTA; serve as a Scout den mother; read the paper, a current book; listen to the latest news broadcasts; be the Indian who is burned at the stake, the horse in a wild West game or a guest at a doll tea party; cook three meals and look like a glamour girl, freshly bathed, combed and dressed for her best

"In this day and age the mother who devotes her life and herself to her children is not only old fashioned but almost extinct. Even the authorities on child care are advising us to neglect our children for their own good and the psychiatrists are warning us to make a life for ourselves when our children are young and not to lose our identity or personalities to our jobs of being mothers lest at 45 to 50 we be left with nothing but a group of neurosis when our children have grown up and are making a life for themselves."

"Let's keep our children near to us and dear to us but let's not be just Susie Brown's mother. Let's be Mrs. Brown, the secretary of the PTA; that clever Helen Brown who designs her own clothes and raises such beautiful African violets or that Harry Brown's wife who always goes to the football games with him."

Mrs. Poling concluded with the advice, "Let's not be just mothers. Let's be a person, too."

During the business meeting, a donation was voted to the Red Cross and the Spring conference was announced. It will be held May 8, in Hebron.

Refreshments were served by the hostess with Mrs. Gladden Troutman assisting.

A small bunch of frosted grapes takes a beautiful garnish for a mixed fruit cup.

Good Schools Are Discussed

Mrs. Gerald Patrick presided at the meeting of Pickaway Township Parent Teacher Organization, held Thursday evening in the school auditorium.

During the program period an educational picture, "Shortest Way Home," was shown and George McDowell, county school superintendent, talked on the subject, "Good Schools For Our Times."

At the social hour, refreshments were served by Mrs. Harry Sharrett and her committee.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

Good manners are as contagious among children as measles, when parents have them first. This truth is certainly self-evident concerning manners at church.

Among the worst manners at church which many parents practice with their children, is arriving after the services have begun. As these children grow up and go to church with their own children, they, too, usually are late to church. How often have you attended any kind of regular religious service when no one entered after these services began?

There are, of course, some valid reasons for lateness at church or elsewhere — traffic irregularities, low batteries on cold mornings, or an unfaithful alarm clock, to name a few.

If I had my younger days of research to live over, I think I would like to make a scientific study to ascertain whether poverty or wealth had anything to do with lateness to church, especially during inclement weather.

SOME YEARS AGO I did make a sampling survey in widely different economic areas among some Protestant churches (which I knew best) of a large city.

While the samplings were too few to warrant valid conclusions, it appeared that in the areas where many of the congregation had no cars, the degree of lateness on any Sunday morning and of absence on an inclement Sunday, was noticeably less than in the mink coat and big limousine areas. More children and youths attended church in the former economic areas observed than in the wealthier ones.

Recently I read the following in a Catholic publication: "When people have to drive miles to Mass, you usually see them there ahead of time. But when they have to walk only a few city blocks, you will find them shamefully late. Nor is it always the poor who are guilty of this breach of etiquette. More often it is the costly suit or the mink coat that causes the distraction."

Nevertheless, we tend often to associate better manners with better economic levels. Does it hold for promptness of arrival at church services?

Anyway, if we are going to associate the badness of manners in lateness of arrival at church with the degree of annoyance to other persons, and the amount of distraction from the sanctity of the church services, we might conclude that rudeness from lateness is greatest when the services are most highly dramatized, as in Mass and the more formal worship of certain Protestant groups. Excepting announcements, it is hard to think of any kind of religious service in which shifting feet and moving persons are not distracting.

PERHAPS THE LATENESS habit is worst in Sunday schools. Parents who really care about the moral and spiritual welfare of their children will go with their children to church or Sunday school on time. It's wonderful when these parents participate with their children in church service with dignity and reverence, and always stay with them to the very end of the service.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—Two police detectives who stopped a couple of men for questioning Tuesday night because they appeared suspicious were right—they were bandits.

The two men took away the detectives' guns and forced them into the police squad car. They drove around for a half hour before they bound the policemen and left them in a coal yard. The gunmen then drove the squad car to a nearby saloon and held up the owner and 15 customers. They got $400.

George Washington said it first. This week, the celebration of Washington's birthday brings to mind the story about the famous cherry tree. Whether he said, "I can't tell a lie" or we don't know, but the father of our country did say, "honesty is always the best policy." The founding father of A&P—George Huntington Hartford—had the same idea when he said, "Always do what is honest, fair, and sincere and in the best interest of our customers."

That's the spirit that has always guided the folks of A&P. It always will!

Looking Ahead

When a nation has a sound economic system, with incentives and freedoms such as we have in the United States, there still may be some backward areas where there is lack of leadership and vision and where improvement in the standard of living for the whole population drags very slowly. Nobody has been starving, of course; but there has been a noticeable lag in progress and general betterment in some few areas.

In my journeys through our country, I've seen some of these slow-to-progress areas. This column is a report on what has happened to one of them. The report reflects great credit on 1,000 Arkansas business and professional men who have provided leadership and vision and a willingness to spend their energies and resources for the common good.

A few years ago I visited a small city in Arkansas and found its commerce, its economic and social life to be standing still—making no visible progress. The leading hotel had frayed carpets on the lobby floor, the Main Street buildings were drooping-looking and in need of paint, many dwellings and yards were untended, and it seemed to me that even the people themselves moved about the streets listlessly. There appeared to be no pride no ambition present.

Today this little Arkansas city which was fast asleep a few years ago is wide awake and soundly prosperous; living standards throughout the population are high, opportunities are wide open for everybody. It is probably the fastest growing community in the South. You immediately ask—

What has happened? The answer is that its business and professional men were awakened and prodded into civic action by an organization called "The Arkansas Economic Council." In its ten years of existence the Council has proved to the whole state that people can "pull themselves up by their own bootstraps."

THE COUNCIL was founded by a handful of public-spirited business men. The primary purpose was to get new manufacturing plants started to boost the production of wealth in Arkansas—locally financed home industries to process local raw materials, and large out-of-state factories with big payrolls. The handful of leaders went over the state buttonholing business men in the 75 counties. Soon they had enlisted 1,000 men. A technical staff was employed and a resources inventory was made in every county. The business men in each community then held "Build Your Own Home Town" clinics. All kinds of people attended—from women's clubs, the schools, the churches, from all phases of the community's life. Local projects were scheduled on a priority basis and the citizens literally rolled up their sleeves and went to work. New industries began to pop up all over the state; new parks and playgrounds appeared, school and health facilities were expanded and improved; downtown areas were modernized; new job opportunities opened up in more than 100 Arkansas communities.

The council has just held its annual statewide meeting in Little Rock. More than 700 of the original 1,000 business and industrial executives and professional men interrupted busy schedules to attend.

They all have been giving as much as several weeks each year to the "community development" clinics and to providing leadership in pushing to completion the projects selected in these clinics.

The progress report made at the statewide meeting shows what people can do with this kind of leadership and inspiration. In ten years Arkansas has made the greatest economic growth in the nation, has led all states in per capita income increase. Hundreds of new industries—big and little—have been established, thousands of new jobs created, millions of dollars in new payrolls created. In the last three years, 138 Arkansas communities have held the clinics and have begun to improve themselves—modernize, pave streets, build playgrounds, improve their schools, and to do the other things that go along with wholesome progress.

The Socialists and their followers are always hammering away at the American business man. Yet, when all the facts are known he is revealed as the truly great progressive force, providing vision, leadership, know-how and willing service in America's march toward a still better life for all.

Teen Tips

This is the problem of an impatient teenager who wants to begin dating at 13. Is it your problem, too?

She writes: "Do you think it is improper for a girl of 13 to allow a boy to take her to movies on his money? I am still in grade school. My mother does not think it is. She says it is all right to sit with the boy, but she does not think they should pay my way yet, because that would be a date. What do you think about this?"

Ans.—Girls who are happiest are the ones who take life in small "bites," one at a time in the right sequence, instead of in big, impatient, greedy "gulps," too much at once.

Slow down and take it easy! If you do, you'll have time to enjoy each part of your life in turn, as it comes. Then you won't miss any of the fun and experiences that you should have by rushing things too much... too soon.

Many girls don't begin dating until they begin high school. That's not very long for you to wait. Why not go along with your mother's idea for the rest of the time while you're in grade school... go to the movies and sit with a nice boy, if you like, and regard it as the first step in your date-life.

The next step will come in high school. Then a real date with an escort who buys your ticket will be one of the pleasures of the big adventure of starting high school. It's logical! Try it, and you won't miss out or be sorry.

I WAS MUCH TOO FAT UNTIL I LOST 38 LBS.

Dayton Lady Finds Ugly Fat Just Melts Away

"I can really say Renuel Concentrate has done a lot for me. I am 39 years of age, weighed 160 lbs. I was much too fat," writes Mrs. L. Leatherman, R. R. 18, Box 186 Dayton 7, Ohio. "Since taking Renuel I have lost 38 lbs. and feel just fine. My health is much better and I don't have those awful headaches that I used to have before. My first bottle of Renuel made me feel good and the bulky fat just melts away. I was never hungry while losing my weight—Renuel is really great."

Thousands have overcome the social and physical discomfort of being overweight with this effective home recipe. Obtain liquid Renuel at your drug store, mix with grapefruit juice as directed and take two teaspoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't seem to disappear almost like magic with the very first bottle, just return it to the manufacturer for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while reducing with Renuel. Note how quickly bloated appears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Insist on and be sure to get genuine Renuel Concentrate.

Buick even keeps the Sun in its Place

Of course, this new glass—which reduces glare and incoming sun-heat—is a Buick feature in '52

WITH all the new things we've had to talk about in 1952 Buicks, we're just getting around to this one.

It's called "Easy-Eye Glass"—a new kind of glass with a cool, soft, blue-green tint, which filters the sun's rays entering your car—cuts down their glare and heat.

You'll appreciate the "glare control" at any time—and when you hit your first stretch of hot-weather driving you'll find that this glass does a great job of keeping the heat out of your lap.

We know—because thousands of happy Buick owners already have this new comfort feature. The rest of the automobile industry is just beginning to discover what Buick discovered a year ago. It's a great idea, which costs you very little extra if you order it when you're buying a new car.

But this still leaves the other folks with a lot of catching up to do.

You'll look a long way before you'll find anything that approaches a Buick's million dollar ride.

You'll look a long way before you'll find anything so completely satisfying as Dynaflo Drive.*

You'll find it hard to match the style and beauty and harmonious good taste of a 1952 Buick's interior trim and fabrics.

And when it comes to what you get for what you pay—we'll gladly match price tags with the field.

Have you had a good look at the '52 Buicks? That's something you ought to do soon.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Optional at extra cost—available on most models. (Not presently available in Massachusetts.)

Sure is true for '52

This is the problem of an impatient teenager who wants to begin dating at 13. Is it your problem, too?

She writes: "Do you think it is improper for a girl of 13 to allow a boy to take her to movies on his money? I am still in grade school. My mother does not think it is. She says it is all right to sit with the boy, but she does not think they should pay my way yet, because that would be a date. What do you think about this?"

Ans.—Girls who are happiest are the ones who take life in small "bites," one at a time in the right sequence, instead of in big, impatient, greedy "gulps," too much at once.

Slow down and take it easy! If you do, you'll have time to enjoy each part of your life in turn, as it comes. Then you won't miss any of the fun and experiences that you should have by rushing things too much. . . too soon.

Many girls don't begin dating until they begin high school. That's not very long for you to wait. Why not go along with your mother's idea for the rest of the time while you're in grade school. . . go to the movies and sit with a nice boy, if you like, and regard it as the first step in your date-life.

The next step will come in high school. Then a real date with an escort who buys your ticket will be one of the pleasures of the big adventure of starting high school. It's logical! Try it, and you won't miss out or be sorry.

(For free tips on the care of "problem" skin with blackheads or pimples, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams at this paper.)

I WAS MUCH TOO FAT UNTIL I LOST 38 LBS.

Dayton Lady Finds Ugly Fat Just Melts Away

"I can really say Rennie Concentrate has done a lot for me. I am 50 years of age, weighed 180 lbs. I was much too fat," writes Mrs. L. Leatherman, R. R. 10, Box 106, Dayton 7, Ohio. "Since taking Rennie I have lost 38 lbs. and feel just fine. My health is much better and I don't have those awful headaches that I used to have before. My first bottle of Rennie made me feel good and the bulky fat just melts away. I was never hungry while losing my weight—Rennie is really great."

Thousands have overcome the social and physical discomfort of being overweight with this effective home recipe. Obtain liquid Rennie at your drug store, mix with grapefruit juice as directed and take two teaspoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. If reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't seem to disappear almost like magic with the very first bottle, just return it to the manufacturer for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while reducing with Rennie. Note how quickly bloated disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active. Insist on and be sure to get genuine Rennie Concentrate.

Buick even keeps the Sun in its Place

Of course, this new glass—which reduces glare and incoming sun-heat—is a Buick feature in '52

WITH all the new things we've had to talk about in 1952 Buicks, we're just getting around to this one.

It's called "Easy-Eye Glass"—a new kind of glass with a cool, soft, blue-green tint, which filters the sun's rays entering your car—cuts down their glare and heat.

You'll appreciate the "glare control" at any time—and when you hit your first stretch of hot-weather driving you'll find that this glass does a great job of keeping the heat out of your lap.

We know—because thousands of happy Buick owners already have this new comfort feature. The rest of the automobile industry is just beginning to discover what Buick discovered a year ago. It's a great idea, which costs you very little extra if you order it when you're buying a new car.

But this still leaves the other folks with a lot of catching up to do.

You'll look a long way before you'll find anything that approaches a Buick's million dollar ride.

You'll look a long way before you'll find anything so completely satisfying as Dynaflo Drive.*

You'll find it hard to match the style and beauty and harmonious good taste of a 1952 Buick's interior trim and fabrics.

And when it comes to what you get for what you pay—we'll gladly match price tags with the field.

Have you had a good look at the '52 Buicks? That's something you ought to do soon.

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice. *Optional at extra cost—available on most models. (Not presently available in Massachusetts.)

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on other Series.

Sure is true for '52

FINALS DUE FRIDAY NIGHT

Darby, Pickaway To Meet For Consolation Honors

Darby Trojans and Pickaway Pirates basketball teams will clash Friday night for consolation honors in the 1952 Pickaway County basketball tournament.

Those two were paired Wednesday night during the semifinal round of the loser's bracket in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum.

Darby advanced into position for a crack at the loser's championship with a narrow 50-45 victory over Williamsport's Deer cagers.

And Pickaway rallied its way into the loser's finals by collecting an even closer 58-55 victory over the Ashville Bronco basketballers.

Only 953 fans were on hand in the Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum Tuesday night for the semifinal round in the loser's bracket.

BUT THE COLISEUM is expected to be jammed to the rafters come Friday night in the final round of play in the 1952 tournament.

Feature attraction for the fans Friday will be the battle between Monroe's Indians and New Holland's Bulldogs for the 1952 county championship. Both teams already are assured of berths in the district tournament.

Preliminary to the championship game will be the Darby-Pickaway fracas, where the two teams will be slugging it out for the one remaining trip to the district eliminations, in addition to winning third place honors in the county.

IN WEDNESDAY'S Darby-Williamsport opener, the underdog Deer cagers got off to a shaky start in the first period as Darby's Trojans racked up a lopsided 14-4 advantage.

Darby maintained its 10-point lead in the second frame of the game with a 30-20 count, although the Deers began creeping up in the third frame to slash the lead down to a 38-32 margin.

Williamsport was only able to whittle one more point away from Darby's lead in the final period of play as the Trojans swept into the victory with the final 50-45 count.

Darby racked up its victory and moved into the loser's bracket finals by virtue of its accuracy at the charity toss line.

During the evening, both teams connected for 18 field goals. Darby won the contest, however, by sinking 14 out of 22 free throw shots, while Williamsport lost by hitting only nine of its 24 charity shots.

Darby's Jim Grabbill and its towering Bob Drummond were high scorers for the victors in the fracas with 13 points each, while Williamsport's Bob Picklesimer harvested game scoring laurels with a total of 15 points.

It was the Pickaway-Ashville saw battle which gave the fans their biggest thrill of the evening, however.

ASHVILLE'S BRONCO cagers opened strongly against the Pick-away Pirates in the first period of play to rack up a 16-14 advantage.

Pickaway surged right back in the second canto, however, passing the Bronco courtmen and setting up a 27-24 lead at the mid-mark.

Both teams fought tooth and nail during a hectic third period before Ashville emerged with a 41-40 lead over the Pirates, and with only about four minutes of play remaining in the game Ronnie Wilson gave Ashville a 50-47 lead over the Pirates with a free throw.

About 15 seconds later, Wilson moved Ashville's lead to 51-47 with another charity toss, although Pickaway's Herschel Brumfield and Victor Pontius evened the count at 51-all in the next 30 seconds with field goals.

Fred Bandy put Ashville ahead again with a free throw next, but Dale McAfee of Pickaway netted a bunny shot to give Pickaway the lead again. Ashville tied the game up again with only 1:55 minutes left to play when Jack Hutchison netted a free throw.

Pontius hit a push shot and Brumfield posted a free throw next to give Pickaway a 56-53 edge and Ashville's Charles Hardin pumped in a push shot to make the score 56-55.

Pickaway's Brumfield clinched the victory with only about a second of playing time remaining when he went in and under for a bunny shot, giving the Pirates their 58-55 win.

Pontius was Pickaway's top scorer in the thriller with a total of 17 points for the evening, while Ashville's Hardin paced the losing Broncos with 14.

Motor Vehicle License Sales Start March 1

First of the new 1952 motor vehicle license stickers will begin appearing in use here in two weeks.

Sales of the new licenses, to be in the form of decal transfers, will begin in Pickaway County March 1.

Local vehicle owners have again been warned that no licenses will be issued unless the owner has his title and the registration slip from 1951.

Five license-dispensing agencies will be in operation in the county during the period for permit sales.

Agencies where the new transfers may be purchased after March 1 and the names of the deputy registrars in charge will be: Georgia Hoover, 46 Wright street, Ashville; O. M. Beckett, Scioto Bank, Commercial Point; Kenneth Oesterle, Front street, New Holland; Smith Lingo Jr., Route 2, Williamsport; and Joseph E. Brink, Pickaway Courthouse, Circleville.

Brink's agency in Circleville, however, will be the only office in the county capable of dispensing truck licenses.

These Days

which cost more than $70,000,000 this year, without co-ordinating them with the fiscal policies of government—taxes, national debt, the value of currency, the reservoir of private capital available for maintenance and expansion—there is no such co-ordination. Authority is scattered, responsibility is diffuse.

Should Mr. Truman continue in office, an increasing power will be concentrated in the Presidency. To an alarming degree, the President has to depend upon his very large and ever-growing secretarial staff which can no longer be housed in the White House but has been moved across the street to the Old State Building. These men and women are generally obscure and not known to the people except when they are exposed by scandal. The best known and most influential of them is John R. Steelman.

Mr. Truman has developed an intermediate "front office" through which much of the business of government channels from departments and agencies to the President. This body of anonymous, depersonalized clerks reduces the authority and responsibility of Cabinet officers.

Perhaps no other cause is more to blame for the confusion and irresponsibility in our government than this concentration of effective power in obscure persons.

Pickaway Red Cross To Seek $10,855 In 1952 Campaign

Local Share Of Fund To Be $5,295

Use Of 1951 Money Told

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles outlining the work of the American Red Cross.)

Pickaway County's 1952 American Red Cross fund goal has been set at $10,855—$5,295 earmarked for local use and $5,560 is the county's share to national headquarters.

The $5,560 national figure may appear, at the outset, to be a gone-and-forgotten chunk of cash. But careful study shows that this is not entirely true.

While no emergencies or disasters exist at the moment in Pickaway County, they do continually happen among Pickaway's neighbors—from here to the other side of the globe in Korea.

The 1952 quota is the same as last year. Pickaway County's dollars in 1951 were put to good use—and they probably helped many Pickaway Countians.

THIS COUNTY has marked its gold stars in the Korean conflict. And the county has counted other men who suffered injuries in fighting against the Communists.

Here is the Red Cross record with reference to Korea:

1. From May through October last year, an average of 30,120 military welfare cases and requests were handled each month.
2. Value of articles shipped to Korea—and distributed free—during that period totaled $143,585.
3. During the first year of war in Korea, the Red Cross distributed 15 million sheets of stationery and more than 10 million envelopes to servicemen—free.

4. The ARC maintains a service club in Pusan, Korea, and an auxiliary unit in the Pusan railway station. It has stationary canteens at Pusan Air Base, Taegu, Suwon and Kansu and in Sasebo, Japan.
5. Approximate monthly attendance at the Korea installations is 811,000.

6. The ARC makes absolutely no charge for services given in any of the Korea outposts. Monthly operation cost was $87,969, which covered, among other things, 1 thousand gallons of coffee and nearly 2.5 million doughnuts—all free.

Pickaway County men got some of this aid.

When the Ohio River left its banks in January, the ARC helped 5,283 families. Had the Scioto flooded Circleville, similar emergency aid would have been made available here—regardless of how much the county had paid into the ARC fund.

TED SIMS of Circleville, now a private first class in the Air Force, recently underwent surgery in a New York military hospital. He is recovering rapidly, but reports in the meantime that the Red Cross is providing constant aid and entertainment to hospital patients. If a patient can move about, he goes to a recreation center. If he is bedfast, the Red Cross comes into the ward. Some of Pickaway County's dollars are helping in this instance.

Strictly on the local scene, the Red Cross budget is $5,295. Largest portion of this will go toward the blood program.

No Pickaway Countian, regardless of whether he contributes blood or money, is charged for blood furnished him by the ARC. He may be asked to pay for a doctor's services, but he will not be charged for the blood.

Other local expenditures include the home service facilities provided by the ARC. This portion is especially noticeable with regard to military personnel.

An emergency at home will see the ARC work to contact the absent servicemen through military channels.

The ARC cannot guarantee that the GI will get an emergency leave since that is up to the GI's military superiors, but the ARC will make the contact, deliver the message and help the GI financially if he needs it.

At home, too, the ARC sponsors special instruction classes in first aid, water safety and accident prevention. Many classes have been turned out in Pickaway. Students were not charged for the instruction they received.

The local budget includes no high salaries. The administrative salary is $1,200 a year—not excessive for the employee who is "on call" 24 hours a day, like a doctor. With this exception, all local ARC personnel are volunteer workers.

To the accusation against ARC that "donors never know where their money goes," there is the simple answer issued by ARC headquarters: "At the end of each fiscal year, all books are audited and annual reports are available to the public."

South Carolina was the first state in the south to secede from the Union.

County Breeders Alerted Against New Infection

Pickaway County livestock producers were alerted today against a serious reproductive disease in cattle and sheep which now appears to have spread to every state in the nation.

The disease, vibronic infection, takes a heavy toll of livestock profits through breeding failures, according to the American foundation for animal health.

Vibronic infection is caused by a tiny germ which attacks cows and ewes, causing sterile animals or the loss of calves and lambs.

Diagnosis is difficult, as vibronic infection can easily be confused with other cattle and sheep breeding diseases, such as brucellosis, trichomoniasis, salmonellosis, pasteurization and listeriosis.

FOR THIS REASON, when owners have breeding troubles in their herds, they should have the animals given blood and cultural tests. If the veterinarian finds the trouble is vibronic infection, steps can then be taken to deal with the problem on a herd basis.

Bulls and rams are believed to be the chief spreaders of the disease. New cows and ewes should be tested, too. Safety measures include segregating healthy animals from the infected ones and guarding against the spread of the disease.

Tribunal Orders Retrial Of Suit

COLUMBUS, Feb. 21.—(P)—The Ohio Supreme Court Wednesday ordered further proceedings in the damage suit of Mrs. Edna Banks of Portsmouth against the Ohio Power Co. and the Ideal Milk Co. in the death of her husband.

Mrs. Banks' husband, John, was electrocuted March 24, 1944, by a power line while working in a Portsmouth building owned by the milk firm. Lower courts held for the defendants, but the supreme court reversed them and sent the case back on grounds the trial court had abused its discretion.
